M'ARTHUR PUTS HIROHITO KIN ON WAR CRIME LIST

Two Ex-Premiers to Be Arrested

TOKYO, Dec. 3 [Monday] (AP)—In the most important single list of war crime suspects yet issued, Gen. MacArthur today ordered the arrest of 59 prominent Japanese, reaching for the first time into the imperial household and the ranks of Japan's industrial-financial hierarchy, the Zaibatsu.

MacArthur's abolition of the National Financial Control association and completion of a detailed inventory of Japanese industry, to form the basis of whatever reparations Japan may be required to pay, were other steps in the direction of demilitarizing Japan.

Those ordered arrested included Prince Morimasa Nashimoto, 71, a relative of Emperor Hirohito, and two former premiers, Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma and Koki Hirota. Two other ex-premiers, Kuniaki Koiso and Hideki Tojo, already are behind bars.

Financial Giants Named

Political leaders, several generals and admirals, two newspaper executives, and a number of important industrialists and bankers who financed Japan's aggression were on the list.

The announcement did not specify any charges against Nashimoto, a lesser prince who became a field marshal in 1932 and who was a supreme war councilor for many years.

The new list, appearing as the allies prepared to prosecute the first of 259 suspects in custody, seemed to answer the question raised here since family control of Japanese industry and finance was ordered broken up: Would members of the Zaibatsu themselves face trial?

Ordered arrested were such financial giants as Kiyoshi Goko, former president of the Mitsubishi Heavy Industries company; Seihin Ikeda, a Mitsui banker who became governor of the Bank of Japan, and Chikuhei Nakajima, founder of a fighter aircraft production company.

Ex-Commanders Listed

Military leaders ordered jailed included Admirals Soetake Toyoda and Sankichi Takahashi, each of whom had served as commander in chief of the combined fleet and chief of the navy general staff, and Field Marshal Shunroku Hata, former commander in chief of Japanese expeditionary forces in China and former minister of war.

Japan's diplomatic corps contributed to the new list such figures as Eiji Amau, long foreign office spokesman and author of the Amau statement of April, 1934, warning other powers to keep hands off China, and Masayuki Tani, foreign minister in the Tojo cabinet in 1942.

The newsmen named were Inosuke Furuno, who was president of the recently disbanded Domei agency and councilor of the cabinet information bureau during the war, and Matsutaro Shoriki, president of the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri and former chief of the criminal section of the metropolitan police bureau.

When arrested, the newly-named suspects will join those previously jailed and now awaiting trial at Sugamo and Omori prisons.

Inventory Is Complete

The National Financial Control association, which MacArthur ordered abolished, was one of 29 war time financial bodies and banks closed Sept. 30. It was a policy-making organization sponsored by the government and with jurisdiction over all the empire's financial institutions.

The industrial inventory was given to Edwin W. Pauley, chief of the United States reparations mission, only 12 days after he had requested it. It contained production figures, war damage, and plant equipment inventories on all Japanese war industries, as well as compilations of all foreign assets owned by the Japanese whether government, corporate, or private.

The list presumably may be used to determine what industries may be transferred bodily from Japan to allied countries as reparations, or be destroyed.

Doctors Held in Britain to Aid GI Stork

BY WARD WALKER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 2.—While America is in dire need of physicians, approximately 1,000 United States army doctors are held in England to treat a few soldiers hurt in accidents, fights, and occasional sicknesses and to prepare a vast pediatric setup to care for babies born to English wives of American soldiers waiting for transportation to America.

This was the story told today by a young Chicago medical officer with 68 points who has been overseas about two years and saw action. He asked to remain anonymous for fear "I'll be stuck on this island until the end of time." He said hospitals are overstaffed—some three deep in doctors—while operating at only one third capacity. The last battle casualty was sent to America weeks ago.

This situation came about after the Germans quit, but while the Japanese were still fighting, the officer said. The war department pulled out doctors with low points for transshipment to the Pacific and left the high point physicians here. The Japanese quit but the war department policy did not change—low point physicians were still shipped out under the old order.

Meanwhile the policy was established in the United States of not shipping out any physicians having more than 30 points. Hence medical students, this officer said, who have received their education at the expense of the government and amassed 48 points in four years schooling cannot be sent to relieve these physicians, some of whom have 80 points.

"Most of us here gave up good practices, left families and didn't complain," the officer said. "We were needed and went gladly. But I have a wife and child and I am just as anxious to get back as any GI. While we sit idle, our practices go glimmering. Other doctors get our patients; our residences are picked off by medical students who have never left the United States, but are being discharged; and our techniques grow rusty.

Shudders at Chore Ahead

"I am a surgeon, but my assignment now is delivering babies. I shudder to think of the chore ahead late this month and early in January, when 50,000 English brides gather at the staging area for shipment to America! I realize that the job must be done here and by American physicians, but more than enough American doctors have married English girls to handle the job—and they would volunteer to stay."

He said a circular is on the books stipulating that any one having over 60 points automatically is sent to a replacement depot to be returned home. But no one paid any attention to this.

ENGLISH BRIDE OF YANK SOUGHT AFTER SEA HOP

Mrs. Jean Pauline Carbone, 19, English war bride who arrived in Chicago Nov. 29 aboard the American Airlines plane from London, en route to rejoin her husband, Harold, of Rochester, N. Y., former army air forces lieutenant, last night was being sought by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross.

When she landed here, Mrs. Carbone told reporters she planned to go to Dubuque, Ia., where, she said, her husband was visiting friends.

Saturday night the Rochester chapter of the Red Cross asked the Chicago chapter to try to locate Mrs. Carbone. Her husband, in Rochester, first learned of her arrival when he saw her picture in a Chicago newspaper, the Red Cross was informed. He said he never had been in Dubuque, Ia., had no friends there, and was unable to understand his wife's plan to go there.

They Call It Peace

An Editorial

The senate confessed its disbelief in justice and freedom in rejecting Sen. Taft's amendment to the measure establishing the powers of the American representative on the united nations security council. The proportions of the vote, 41 to 18, make it virtually certain that a majority of the senators, as crassly stupid as they are unpatriotic, are prepared to surrender to Mr. Stettinius, the white haired boy of Wall street, the congressional power to make war.

It is hard to see how any decent American could object to the adoption of the Taft amendment. It provided that the American member of the security council, in voting on any proposal to use American troops against another nation, be instructed to consider international justice as well as the maintenance of peace. The senate majority is all for peace, and to hell with justice.

The peace they are going to maintain is the peace of the grave and the concentration camp. It is the peace maintained by strafing Indonesian patriots with lend-lease planes. It is the peace in which the rubber barons of the Netherlands and the colonial capitalists of France will continue to bleed slave labor in Asia and Africa for imperial glory and personal profit. It is the peace being maintained by Russia in Iran, where the Iranian government is being prevented by armed threat from suppressing a rebellion fomented and armed by the Russians. It is the peace in which the Red army is loosed to loot all of eastern Europe, and Polish miners are impressed to dig coal for Russia at a third of its cost.

The utter cynicism of the San Francisco charter is made apparent to the whole world by the action of the senators. There is no justice in it, no freedom, only the peace of a status quo, in which the enslavers of half the world are banded together in a new Holy Alliance to perpetuate that slavery.

There is nothing for America in such a system except the opportunity for more American sons to die—to die this time that the shackles of the oppressed may be made tighter. Men who will consent to such an arrangement, who vote against the proposal to ameliorate it by the consideration of justice, don't belong in the highest council chamber of the nation. They belong in an insane asylum.

BANDIT STEALS $2,900 FROM I. C. AGENT AND GIRL

An Illinois Central railroad special agent and a girl messenger were held up on the road's 64th st. suburban platform last night and robbed of envelopes containing approximately $2,900.

The agent, Robert Bolen, 32, of 6956 Woodlawn av., and the messenger, Doris Cronin, 17, of 3002 Cheltenham pl., had collected the money, representing the day's receipts, from the thru station at 63d st., the suburban station at 63d st., and the suburban station at 64th st., and had mounted the stairs to the 64th st. platform when a man armed with a revolver approached them from behind and ordered Bolen to drop the money.

He then ordered them to walk along the platform toward 63d st., while he scooped up the envelopes containing the money and darted back down the stairs.

Finds Finns Lack Shoes So Schools Are Closed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 2—Schools must be closed in German devastated North Finland with the approach of winter because the children lack shoes. Jarl Louhija, public relations chief for Finland relief, has just returned here from a tour of the war scorched north and says thousands of families are without enough shoes or clothing. Only one child out of every four in Lapland could dress warmly enough to attend school, he reported.

JAP ARTILLERY SHELLS NATIVE TROOPS IN JAVA

British Organize 6 Gun Battery

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 2 (AP)—A Japanese artillery battery, under British orders, blasted today at an Indonesian headquarters in Bandoeng, Java summer capital 75 miles southeast of Batavia.

The British, who had said previously they were using Japanese troops in Java for "defensive" action, announced that they had organized a Japanese battery of three Krupp guns and three mountain cannon.

Indonesians said their headquarters at Bandoeng was bombed by British planes, and a British report said two Thunderbolts bombed out an Indonesian strongpoint blocking convoys evacuating refugees near Bandoeng.

Removing 3,000 Eurasians

At least 10 Indonesians were killed in a battle with British Indian troops evacuating 600 refugees from northern Bandoeng. The Indonesians, using machine guns, grenades, and mortars, wounded two Indians.

The British said they were continuing the removal of 3,000 Eurasians from the southern sector of Bandoeng, from which they had cleared most of the Indonesians. Killings of Eurasians continued in southern Bandoeng, British reports said.

There was fighting also in the Soerabaja area farther east, where 16 Indonesians wer killed.

HEAR U. S. NOTE REJECTED

MOSCOW, Dec. 2 (AP)—A Moscow diplomatic source said today the soviet union has turned down a United States proposal that allied troops be withdrawn from Iran by Jan. 1.

The Moscow radio meanwhile said Russia would take no part in the political events of northern Iran, which is occupied by Red army troops.

[The United States state department made public Nov. 26 the text of a note delivered to the Russian government which said American troops would be withdrawn from Iran by Jan. 1 and proposing similar action by Britain and Russia. The note said that since hostilities had ceased there was no "compelling reason" for allied troops to remain in Iran until March 2, 1946—the date originally agreed upon by the Big Three at Tehran.]

Send United States Replacements

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 2 (AP)—Rebel autonomists, with about 4,000 men under arms, have seized police and government officials in strife-torn Azerbaijan province, three official American observers reported today after returning from that province which borders on soviet Russia.

The American embassy said that 2,000 American troops had arrived from the United States, but that these had been sent as replacements.

REDS WARN VIENNA

BY JOHN MacCORMAC
[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 2—A possible answer to the question of how Russia would react to the rebuff suffered in the Austrian elections a week ago was supplied by the summoning of Vienna publishers Friday to a "press conference" where they were lectured by Russian censorship authorities on their past sins and threatened with retribution if they did not mend their ways.

To western readers the Vienna press seems to censor itself so rigorously as to be almost lifeless. Not once in the four months he has spent here, for instance, has this correspondent seen a single reference to the fact that the Russian occupation forces have been living off the land and thus, if unavoidably, contributing to the semi-famine conditions which prevail in eastern Austria with the exception of Vienna. Instead, Russian shipments of food to Vienna and con-

U. S. IS RADIOING SWING TO WORLD AT $82,000 A DAY

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2—The administration is spending approximately $82,000 a day of American taxpayers' money to broadcast swing music and news summaries to the nations of the world, congressional sources revealed today.

The house appropriations committee is expected to wield an ax on this propaganda organ, which spent in excess of 30 million dollars during the current fiscal year, when it appeals for additional funds, it was learned.

On Nov. 16, 1945, a date selected at random by congressional investigators, the so-called "interim international information service" of the state department, formerly a branch of the office of war information, made 105 broadcasts to foreign countries.

Six to Thailand

There were 10 broadcasts to Japan, 13 to the far east, 5 to Korea, 6 to Thailand, 2 to New Zealand, 10 to China, and numerous other broadcasts to Italy, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia, Germany, France, Austria, Bulgaria, and Romania, this survey showed.

These radio programs are strongly tinged with pro-British sentiments, examination of the scripts revealed, and some to the far east open and close with the announcement: "This is the voice of Britain calling from the United States of America." Others carry the announcement that "This is the voice of America."

A huge staff is engaged in the work of preparing the scripts for these broadcasts, translating them into foreign languages, and sending them out over the air waves.

Samples of Programs

Typical extracts culled from the scripts on the Nov. 16 date follow:

To Japan—"Today we present a discussion on the growing activity of women in the labor movement in America. . . ."

To Korea—"This is the Korean liberty bell, bringing you a program of the world's greatest music." [The music which followed was a polka.] The same program drew a parallel between the Korean chongno bell and the American liberty bell.

To Japan—"On the Town," a ballet-musical which starred Sono Osato and the songs "Times Square," "Lucky to Be Me," and "Dream Sequence."

To Japan — "We bring you the modern culture program, being the first half of a condensation of 'Old MacDonald Had a Farm,' a lesson in conservation and land care."

Negro Spirituals to Japs

To Japan—A program of Negro spirituals, including "I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray."

To Thailand — "What American Commentators Say," featuring Martin Agronsky, Raymond Gram Swing, and Joseph Harsch.

To the Philippines—Commenting favorably on an editorial in a Dallas, Tex., paper approving a plan to give Russia access to the Dardanelles.

To New Zealand—On atom bomb developments. Also music by Carmen Lagaya, featuring "Cocktails for Two," "Bring Another Drink," and "Inspiration."

Jerome Kern's Death

To the far east—A lengthy discussion of "The Automobile That Flies" and improvements in rail travel, including dancing and night clubs en route.

To China—Announcing the death of Jerome Kern, together with the songs, "Can't Help Loving That Man" and "Old Man River."

The program announced as "The Voice of Britain" dealt at great length with the atom bomb conferences. There also was a report on the capture by British troops of points held by Indonesian extremists."

The Attlee-Truman-King statement on treatment of atomic energy was labeled in this program "a birth certificate for the future."

INQUIRY SEEKS TO FIX SCOPE OF ACTIVITIES

Hurley Step May Bring Sensation

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2—Investigation of the communist infiltration of the state department which caused Gen. Hurley to resign in protest as ambassador to China is expected to be attended by sensational disclosures.

Among them is the extent to which the communist government of Russia is able to exert a potent and frequently decisive influence in American politics and in the American government, including the department of justice.

Hurley's resignation with charges that state department officials were interfering with American policy in China in order to aid the Chinese Communists has focused attention on the scandal of the disappearance of secret documents from that department several months ago. Communist influence was strong enough to hush up the affair, with all those involved in the thefts exonerated except two who were let off with fines.

Hurley Appears Wednesday

Immediately following Hurley's resignation, Rep. Dondero [R., Mich.] offered a resolution in the house directing the judiciary committee to investigate disappearance of the documents. The house committee on un-American activities also asked Hurley to give it all the information he possesses on communist activities in the government. Hurley is to appear before the senate foreign relations committee Wednesday to testify in detail regarding communist interference with the administration's policy in China.

Previous investigations have revealed a situation in the United States unparalleled in any but puppet nations. Thru a far-flung network of institutions, honeycombed with Communists, the Moscow government extends a long arm into the United States to mold our policies and subvert our form of government.

Red Papers Active

The American Communist party, the Daily Worker, the New Masses and other communist publications are the mouthpieces of the soviet government in the United States. They place the interest of soviet Russia above the interest of the United States. They commend American officials when they act favorably to Russia and vilify them when they don't. How the Daily Worker was actually subsidized by Moscow as a subversive influence in America was exposed in testimony before the Dies committee.

From these sources the communist influence is spread over the nation thru a score or more of organizations of communist "fellow travelers," who deny they are Communists but secretly and more or less subtly, hew to the Communists party line in the dissemination of Moscow's subversive doctrine.

Exert Powerful Influence

Tho the avowed Communists are few in number they exert a political influence of vast proportions thru control of the CIO and other key political groups in key states. Most important is the New York electoral vote, which in practice is essential to the election of a President. The political balance of power in New York is held by the communist dominated American Labor party which is bossed by Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO political action committee. The strength of the ALP is virtually confined to alien New York City. As the communist controled ALP goes, so goes the nation in a Presidential election.

Altogether, the Russian government possesses powerful organs of subversive influence in the United State the like of which in Russia would not be tolerated by the soviets for a moment.

The boldness with which the communist agents operate in the in-

IOWA HEREFORDS WIN GRAND PRIZE OF STOCK SHOW

Owner Gets Championship Four Years in Row

BY BEN MARKLAND

An unusual combination of a New Mexico ranch employe and an Iowa farmer paid dividends for the fourth consecutive year when Karl Hoffman of Ida Grove, Ia., showed a carload of 15 Hereford steers to the grand championship of the Chicago Market Fat Stock show yesterday in the stock yards.

Karl Hoffman

The western half of the team is M. H. "Slim" Miller, assistant manager of the 110,000 acre T. O. ranch, Raton, N. M., whose 10 gallon hat and cowboy boots are a fixture of every Chicago live stock show.

Win 1942 Championship

Five years ago this fall, Slim persuaded Hoffman to buy a carload of T. O. calves for fattening on his Iowa farm. Hoffman, owner of a 560 acre farm in northwest Iowa, bought the calves, fed them a year, and entered them in the 1942 Chicago show. The T. O. animals won the grand championship in the carload classification that year.

The Miller-Hoffman combination operated on the same basis in 1943 and 1944, and both years Hoffman won the grand championship with calves bought from the T. O. herd.

Robert Storz, Omaha, Neb., business man, is co-owner of the Herefords which Hoffman raised and exhibited.

Iowa Herd Best of Breed

Hoffman's victory in yesterday's show evened the score between his Herefords and the Aberdeen-Angus cattle from the Schmidt brothers farm, Delmar, Ia. The Schmidts, George and Ferd, had won the grand championship carload award four years prior to the victory of Hoffman's Herefords in 1942. The judges, cattle buyers representing Chicago packing houses, yesterday selected the Schmidt Angus as champions of their breed, but finally placed them below the Herefords in the grand championship class.

Hoffman's winning steers will be auctioned Wednesday morning. Last year he received 59 cents a pound for the championship load. The animals averaged 932 pounds, bringing $8,248 for the 15 head. This year's winning animals average 1,040 pounds.

Winners Calved in May, 1944

Hoffman has been exhibiting in the Chicago show for the last 23 years, but never had won a grand championship award until the 1942 show.

The winning animals were calved on the T. O. ranch in May, 1944, and were bought by Hoffman the following November when they weighed 361 pounds each. Hoffman kept them on pasture for 30 days, then moved them into his feed lot. They were fed whole oats and protein supplement for three months. During the last 60 days of the three month period the oat feedings were decreased, gradually being replaced by cracked corn. The last eight months the steers were fed cracked corn, red clover hay, and supplement.

Selection of the winning cattle carloads was the only event on yesterday's schedule. All of the other open and junior class events for cattle, sheep, and swine will be conducted today and tomorrow. Auctions of all the winning animals will be held Wednesday and Thursday.

'BUILDINGS WITH HEADS IN SKIES' AWE 2 SCHOLARS

Canadian 4-H Winners Go Sightseeing

Rita Lefebvre, 20, of Chandler, Quebec, and Normand Laferriere of Berthier, Quebec, who were given $200 scholarships by the Quebec North Shore Paper company for a trip to the national 4-H club meeting in Chicago, toured the city yesterday and marveled at "those buildings with their heads in the skies."

In their French accented English, the dark haired, vivacious Miss Lefebvre and her 4-H companion from towns of 300 population said it was the first time they had seen buildings over 15 stories high. Neither had visited the United States before their present trip, given them by the paper company, a subsidiary of THE TRIBUNE.

Taught Forest Education

The awards were made to the pair on the basis of their initiative in 4-H work in their vicinities. Miss Lefebvre, who is employed in a bank at Chandler, directed an exhibit of home economics work and forest education last August for the 70 members of her 4-H club. Laferriere, who is taking a special scientific course preparatory to entering college, organized two 4-H clubs and a community center for forest instruction at Berthier.

Both they and their chaperons, Mrs. Gerard La Terreur of Chandler and J. A. Breton of Quebec City, marveled at the vastness of the United States 4-H organization.

Membership Totals 500

The Canadian clubs, which are more social and educational organizations than farm groups, have a membership of 500, they said.

Mrs. Terreur, who is leader of the Berthier club, and Breton, general secretary for the Quebec 4-H group, and the two scholarship winners wil lremain in Chicago a day after the end of the convention Thursday.

FRENCH BANKS TAKEN OVER BY GOVERNMENT

Nationalize 80 Pct. of Deposits

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 2—The French constituent assembly, with a few minor amendments, tonight adopted a government bill for nationalizing credit and the five most important French banks after two stormy sessions today. The bill, placing 80 per cent of France's bank deposits under state control, becomes a law tomorrow. The vote was 521 to 35.

Gen. de Gaulle intervened against what appeared to be a move in the assembly's finance committee completely to transform the nationalization measure. One hundred and six drastic amendments had been attached to the bill during the all day discussion which lasted until late last night.

As a result of De Gaulle's intervention, the finance committee got together again with Finance Minister Rene Pleven and adopted the cabinet's viewpoint on most of the points. At De Gaulle's request, two large business banks, the Banque de Paris et des Pays-Bas and the Union Parisienne, were not included in the nationalization. The bank of France and four major deposit banks were nationalized.

Debate Waxes Hot

Hot debates occurred in the assembly and at one time became so stormy that President Felix Gouin had to suspend the session for 15 minutes.

The row, over reimbursing dispossessed bank stockholders, was between Frederick Dupont and Christian Pineau, finance committee member. Finally, the assembly adopted the nationalization bill after more than six hours of wrangling.

The rightist parties voted against the measure and their speakers protested against the government going into the banking business and against the haste and precipitation with which the measure was being rushed thru.

The bill provides for the nationalizing before Jan. 1, 1946, of the Bank of France, with 47,000 stockholders, and the four deposit banks, having a total capitalization of $53,500,000. The four deposit banks have a total of 400,000 stockholders.

The nationalized banks will be directed by 12-member commissions named by the government. The law provides also for narrow control of business [investment] banks, thru naming of a government commissioner to each one.

The measure also created a national credit council, which could recommend nationalization of still other bank establishments.

Pay 2 Per Cent Interest

Shareholders of the Bank of France will be reimbursed with dividends not higher than those of 1944, and the rate of interest on the amortized sinking fund bonds is restricted to not more than 2 per cent.

Shareholders of deposit banks will have their stock purchased over a 50 year period, beginning in 1947, and will be reimbursed with dividends on an average stock value of the past year.

De Gaulle, in asking that business banks be left outside the nationalization program, supported the contention that to include these banks would be harmful to France's chances for reviving her export trade.

In recent weeks the stock valuation of banks slated for nationalization slumped by 10 billion francs [200 million dollars]. The country's savers and investors were awaiting the opening of the Paris bourse [exchange] tomorrow morning to see what effect the nationalization law will have on credit and securities.

It was denied today that any foreign governments had brought pressure to bear on the French government to moderate the nationalization scheme.

RELIEF FOUND FOR HAY FEVER IN NEW DRUG

Discovery of a drug that will give prompt relief from hay fever, asthma, hives, and allergies was announced yesterday by the University of Illinois college of medicine. It is benadryl, a pure cvrystalline compound that may be taken by mouth.

Dr. Earl R. Loew, associate professor of pharmacology and a member of the allergy unit at the university, who discovered the anti-allergy properties of benadryl, estimated that three small doses each day would bring continuous symptomatic relief.

One dose, he said, will relieve hay fever or hives in 30 to 60 minutes. He said, however, that benadryl is not considered a cure.

The new drug counteracts histamine, a chemical released by the body cells during an attack of an allergy. Histamine is considered by medical researchers to be the cause of the distressing symptoms of hay fever and other allergies.

In experiments at the university, guinea pigs which were protected with benadryl survived heavy injections of histamine which ordinarily would have produced fatal attacks of asthma.

Studies with human subjects showed that benadryl prevented hives.

Dr. Loew first demonstrated the anti-histamine properties of benadryl in 1943. Since it may be administered orally, it is more convenient than drugs now administered by injection, but it should be taken only under the direct supervision of a physician, Dr. Loew said.

SOVIET ABUSES OF AMERICANS TOLD BY YANK

Kindly Poles Save Group Fired On by Reds

(Here is the second chapter of a revealing story of conditions in Poland, told by a Chicagoan who escaped from a column of American prisoners of war near Szubin, Poland, last January. In the first chapter he told how kind hearted Poles fed and sheltered him and how he reached Red army headquarters in Wirski. There he hoped to find means of reaching the American embassy in Moscow.)

BY ROBERT E. DAVIS

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

The Red army's headquarters in Wirski, Poland, was a jovial place for the Russians, altho fighting was still going on in part of the town. When I reached the headquarters there were 25 other American officers already there. All of us had been prisoners of war and had escaped from columns of prisoners being marched farther back into Germany.

Our group was assigned to three small rooms on the ground floor, but the Russians made no effort to feed us. Polish civilians brought us coffee and cakes. There was not enough to go around and we tried to give the food to the weakest men.

Russians Offer Only Drinks

Upstairs we could hear the Russian officers celebrating their victory with vodka and eating chicken and beef which they had ordered the Poles to produce. A Russian sergeant brought a keg of wine to us, and knocked out the plug with a whoop. Most of the wine ran out on the floor, which annoyed us, because we had to sleep on that floor.

After the sergeant came a Russian major, who was very drunk. He had a bottle of vodka he wanted to share with us. Thinking of our empty stomachs, we tried to refuse, but he insisted and we drank a little to be polite.

The major had peculiar ideas of fun. He suddenly grabbed the dog tag and chain from the neck of one of our men and flung it out of the window. Then he picked up another officer's suitcase and dumped the contents all over the floor.

We tried to calm him by saying "Russki, tovarish [comrade]," but this seemed to irritate him.

"No Russki," he said. "Ukrainian."

Good Reason for Celebrating

Later we found that many Red army men insisted they were not Russians, but Ukrainians or Georgians.

On this night we realized the Russians had good reasons for celebrating and we did not blame them. We also realized they were front line troops, equipped for fighting and not for taking care of liberated Americans.

But we decided we had better get away from Russian headquarters, find a place of our own, and arrange to buy food from the Poles. In the morning we left our cramped quarters and moved into a new building the Germans had erected as headquarters for civilian administration of the district.

On the way we saw a steady column of 2½ ton trucks moving toward the front. All bore the red star of the Russian army, but 95 per cent of them were American made. We also saw Russian women soldiers, none a glamor girl. They were sturdy, broad beamed, tough looking dames and seemed to be handy with their tommy guns. Many were used as military police.

Kitchen in New Quarters

Our new quarters were elegant. There was a kitchen, an auditorium with a stage, and carpeted offices for the German administrators. There were even toilets, but the water was not running. We had to haul water from a well a quarter of a mile away.

In the kitchen we found German sugar, flour, and jam, and we sent a detail to buy meat and potatoes from the Poles, telling them to sign chits which the American government surely would honor after the war. All day the Russians rode like mad men thru the streets, looting stores and commandeering any service they wanted from the Poles, including girls. Women's dresses and jewelry were the chief objects of the looters, the Poles told us.

We were hardly settled in our new quarters when a Russian lieutenant appeared, drunk and in a fighting mood. He loudly ordered us to get up and go with him to fight the Germans, waving a tommy gun to emphasize his points.

An Hour to Get Rid of Him

One of our men laughed at him—a serious mistake. The lieutenant shoved his gun into the American's stomach, and we thought surely he was going to shoot. Fortunately, one of our group could speak Russian. He explained patiently that we were weak and sick, that we had no arms or proper clothing, and that we couldn't be of much help in fighting the Germans. It took us an hour to get rid of the lieutenant.

Soon afterward our men who had been sent for supplies returned, saying they had been fired on by Red troops and had only been saved by the Poles. This disturbed us. We began to suspect the Russians didn't like us.

Our suspicions were strengthened that night when a Russian major appeared and told us to get out of the building. We asked permission to wait for transport, explaining that most of us were unfit to march, but he refused and told us bluntly to be out of the building by 9 a. m.

March Away in Blizzard

In the basement we found some skis abandoned by the Germans, and these we fastened to boxes to make sleds for hauling our gear. It was a cold day—about 8 degrees—and a blizzard was piling snow into drifts when we started marching, guided by a Polish civilian, toward Naklo, about 28 miles away. Several times we were stopped by Russian troops, and one tough group of them seized the suitcases of two of our men, carrying them off despite our protests.

As we neared Naklo, a Russian girl captain halted our column, refusing to let us enter the town. We persuaded her to let a few men go ahead in a signal truck to look for quarters. Eventually, all of us got into the town, but the advance party had found no place for us to stay.

The Poles, as usual, greeted us joyously. Some thought we were paratroopers who had come to liberate them. They agreed to feed us, and found quarters in a building that had all its windows blown out. In the basement, where we found some coal briquettes, we saw the bodies of 12 German soldiers who had been killed there by Polish patriots.

Poles Still Smiling

There were many other bodies all over the town—Russians, Germans, and Poles. We marveled at the spirit of the Poles, who could smile even tho their town had been destroyed. Among them was a girl who could speak English. She said she formerly had worked for the Ford Motor company in Detroit, Mich., and had returned to Poland shortly before the war to get married. Her husband had been missing for a long time, she said.

Next morning we heard that liberated Americans were being concentrated at the prisoner of war camp in Szubin, where we formerly were guests of the Germans. We decided to go there, altho it meant an 18 mile hike thru deep snow.

On the way, many Russian tanks and trucks passed us. One truck was towing a motorcycle and sidecar, which a Russian soldier was steering in a crazy fashion from side to side.

American's Watch Confiscated

As he swung close to a sled drawn by one of our officers, the sled caught on the sidecar and was dragged ahead. The American ran after it, shouting until the truck stopped. As he reached down to free his sled, his jacket sleeve pulled up, exposing his wrist watch. A Russian saw the watch and tore it off his arm. When the American protested, the Russian cracked him on the head with his pistol, while another Red soldier threatened him with a tommy gun.

This made us angry, and also scared. We simply couldn't understand it. We were so awfully tired and cold, and American made trucks were passing us all the time. We were just about finished when we reached the former prison camp in Szubin.

Other American officers already were there, headed by a colonel, who said the Russians had promised to have trucks at the camp in the morning to take us to Warsaw. This cheered us up. We found dehydrated soup sent to the camp in Red Cross packages, and thawed ourselves out.

3 Days and No Trucks

Next morning no trucks appeared, but they were promised for the following day. That song and dance went on for three days while all of us got weaker and more discouraged. Eight of us decided to try to hitch a ride on one of the Red army trucks passing the camp. We bribed a Russian M. P. with cigarets and he permitted us to board a truck loaded with oil drums.

We figured our troubles soon would be over. How wrong we were!

REVEAL PLANS TO SPOT HAWAII ATTACK BY JAPS

Report Also Gave Idea of Possible Invasion

BY ROBERT YOUNG

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2—Members of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee today were studying an amazingly prophetic report sent to Washington in the summer of 1941 by the army and navy air chiefs in Hawaii which estimated the probable size of any Japanese attacking task force, its direction and speed, and the hour of the attack.

Maj. Gen. Martin (Top) and Vice Adm. Bellinger

The report was made by Maj. Gen. Frederick L. Martin, commanding general of the army air forces in Hawaii, and Vice Adm. Patrick N. L. Bellinger, air defense officer of the Pearl Harbor naval base. The joint survey of the probabilities of an attack on Pearl Harbor was dated Aug. 20, 1941, and has been introduced into the records of the investigating committee. The two air commanders have not yet been called to testify before the committee.

Gave Interception Plan

Besides their prediction of what might happen should the Japanese attack Pearl Harbor, Martin and Bellinger submitted a plan which might have intercepted the Japanese task force 800 miles north of Pearl Harbor as they appeared to launch thier surprise blow.

The two commanders recommended to Washington that 180 B-17 Flying Fortresses be sent to Hawaii. They considered such a group of heavy bombers sufficient not only to provide daily reconnaissance for detecting any Japanese force proceeding toward Pearl Harbor, but also to drive back the attacking ships and carriers if they were discovered.

Predictions "Uncanny"

The request of Martin and Bellinger for a strong bomber force at Pearl Harbor was not heeded by the high command in Washington. No B-17s were sent, and the recommended daily reconnaissance over hundreds of miles of the Pacific ocean surrounding the naval base was not carried out.

Members of the investigating committee asserted that the predictions of Martin and Bellinger were "uncanny." It is expected that when Gen. Marshall, retired army chief of staff, testifies before the committee he will be asked why the high command in Washington did not give serious attention to the Hawaiian air commanders' report and request for a protecting bomber force.

Gen. Marshall is expected to appear before the committee this week. The committee has decided to obtain his testimony before he leaves for China as personal envoy of President Truman with the rank of ambassador.

The direction in which the Japanese task force traveled from the north to attack Pearl Harbor was the same as that named by Martin and Bellinger in their report four months before the attack. The army and navy commanders also predicted that the attack would be made at dawn. This forecast was counter to the beliefs of many high military authorities concerned with Pearl Harbor, who were of the opinion that the attack would be made in the late afternoon.

Calculated Force

The report calculated that the Japanese, if they attacked Pearl Harbor, would use a maximum of six aircraft carriers, would rendezvous 884 nautical miles from Oahu, and would move at 27 knots. The Japanese actually used six carriers in the attack, completed their rendezvous 800 miles from Oahu, and proceeded at 26 knots.

The appeal by Martin and Bellinger for constant and thoro air patrol around Pearl Harbor was ignored in Washington. Instead, air reconnaissance in connection with fleet maneuvers was ordered. Thus, the Pacific ocean area from which the Japanese attacking force appeared—the identical area named in the Aug. 20 report—was not covered and the enemy was undetected.

The few B-17s available in the summer and fall of 1941 were not sent to Hawaii, but were kept in the east to protect the Atlantic seaboard, or were used for training in the United States. Martin and Bellinger were informed by Washington that there were not enough heavy bombers to go around, so their request could not be granted.

When Adm. Thomas C. Hart, now Republican senator from Connecticut, made an investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster in 1943 at the request of the navy secretary, he raised the question of how Martin and Bellinger could be surprised by the Japanese attack if they had such amazing insight into coming events.

It was explained then that the Hawaiian air commanders were taken by surprise because Washington never warned them of the imminence of war with Japan.

The Martin-Bellinger report of Aug. 20, 1941, with its precise description of the latitude and longitude of the area from which the attacking Japanese force might appear, was only one of a series of appeals, warnings, and predictions they sent to Washington.

WEAK DIPLOMACY IRKS CONSCIENCE OF U. S.: GREEN

Gov. Green said in a speech yesterday that the conscience of America is being aroused in protest against diplomatic subservience "to the imperialistic aims of our recent allies."

He spoke before South Slavic Americans of Chicago in a unity and victory day celebration in the Pilsen park pavilion, 3049 W. 26th st.

"The conscience of America is aroused because our representatives seem to be sitting in as silent partners in the oppression and enslavement of millions of men and women, both in Europe and Asia," Green said.

Mock Atlantic Charter

"The hope of the world today lies in the effective use of America's influence for the establishment of justice and liberty and, thru them, enduring peace and prosperity.

"The greatest tragedy of these post-war days lies in the future of the American government and its diplomatic representatives to stand firmly by our American ideals. Altho we are the greatest military power on earth we have mocked the fine words of the Atlantic Charter with meek subservience to the imperialistic aims of our recent allies."

Bravery Is Praised

On the 27th anniversary of the founding of Jugoslavia, uniting Servs, Croats, and Slovenes, the governor paid high tribute to the bravery of Jugoslavians in World War II. and to the contributions made to the war efforts by those who are now Americans.

"You people and all the national groups of our community," Green said, "are better American citizens because of your close ties to the homeland. You know the real meaning of liberty—the real value of our American opportunities to work and advance ourselves and our children."

'MALAYA TIGER' TELLS HOW HE SCARED BRITISH

Gen. Percival Frightened by Table Pounding

Lt. Gen. Yamashita in a radio interview yesterday said that he had expected his outnumbered Japanese army to be annihilated in the battle for Singapore and that he was surprised British Lt. Gen. Percival surrendered that empire bastion early in the war. The exclusive interview was obtained at Manila, where Yamashita is on trial, by Robert Stewart of the Mutual Broadcasting system and was scheduled for broadcast last night by W-G-N.

Gen. Percival

Yamashita told Stewart the Japanese had from 42,000 to 50,000 troops, while the British in Singapore were entrenched with about 100,000 men and had coastal defense guns which could be swung in a full circle.

Expected to Lose Every Man

"I expected British guns to wipe us out to the last man," Yamashita said, pointing out that in the crossing of the Johore strait he wasn't able to bring up heavy artillery. The Japanese commander said he didn't understand why Percival didn't protect Singapore with heavy artillery.

"It was surprising to me that Percival surrendered at all," Stewart quoted Yamashita as saying. "It was by sheer luck that my entire force was not annihilated at Singapore. The British could have annihilated us. I don't know why they did not."

Yamashita denied that he had "bluffed" the British, saying he "wasn't good at poker," and added that he considered himself lucky to have outsmarted Percival.

Insists Title an Accident

Yamashita insisted that his title of the "Tiger of Malaya" was an accident that grew out of surrender negotiations with Percival. He had expected Singapore to be declared an open city, the Japanese general said. After the straits had been crossed in force, he invited Percival to a conference on the outskirts to see if civilian lives could be saved.

Around a table, the Japanese said, were Yamashita, Percival, and an interpreter who was struck by inefficiency and couldn't understand either general. Yamashita wanted to know if Percival "had come in relation to terms" and pounded the table in exasperation at the interpreter's dumbness. Percival thought the Japanese was pounding the table at him, Yamashita said, adding that the British gave him the title of "Tiger of Malaya."

Fails to Impress Tokyo

Tokyo wasn't impressed with Yamashita's generalship at Singapore and relegated him to the insular "sticks" during most of the war. Yamashita told Stewart that he was permitted to return to the Philippines just in time to acquire a profound respect for the United States soldiers and sailors who conquered it.

[In Australia and in London, charges have been made that only extreme blundering could have permitted the Japanese to sweep down the 350 mile Malayan peninsula and then capture Singapore. In charge of the British and empire troops there was Lt. Gen. Arthur Ernest Percival.

British propagandists before the war reported that he looked like an "ascetic university professor" but was interested in polo. Percival was a civilian clerk at the start of World War I. His decorations include the Order of British Empire, awarded in 1921 for fighting Sinn Feiners in Ireland.]

SHOT TO DEATH WHILE CHANGING TIRE ON HIS CAR

Edwin Cowan, 32, of 2157 W. 114th pl., was shot to death last night by a revolver which relatives believed fell from his pocket while he was changing a tire on his automobile in front of 3432 State st.

In the car were his mother, Mrs. Anna Cowan, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Bertha Cowan. He was driving them home from Chicago Memorial hospital where they had visited his father, convalescing from an eye operation.

The women told police they heard him working on a punctured tire. After they heard a shot they found Cowan lying on the pavement, a .32 caliber revolver near-by. He was an engineer for the Hyre Electric company, 741 Jackson blvd. He also is survived by his widow, Patricia, 20, and a daughter, Patrician Ann, 5 months.

WITNESS LINKS YAMASHITA WITH COURTS MARTIAL

BY ROBERT CROMIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 3 [Monday]—Testimony that Gen. Yamashita decided before each court-martial whether preliminary evidence justified holding a trial was given today by Col. Hideo Nishiharu, chief of the judge advocate section under the former Japanese commander.

This was brought out under cross examination by Capt. Adolf Reel of Boston, Mass., defense counsel, who was attempting to break down Nishiharu's previous testimony that Yamashita had ordered a cursory investigation of 1,000 Filipinos suspected of being guerrillas, 600 of whom subsequently were killed.

Questioned by General

Despite detailed questioning as to procedure, Nishiharu stuck grimly to the story that in each case, after a preliminary investigation, it was Yamashita who decided whether the evidence was sufficient to prosecute. He was the first person to link Yamashita with Jap courts martial or military tribunal proceedings which, according to previous testimony, consisted merely of calling in the accused and announcing a sentence previously decided upon.

The trial commission considered Saturday's testimony by Nishiharu so vital that it ordered him returned to the stand today for exhaustive questioning, in which Maj. Gen R. B. Reynolds, the trial commission president, joined. The witness took much of the curse off of his previous testimony, as far as Yamashita was concerned, by stating that Yamashita did not pass on court-martial death verdicts after they were handed down, but that the executions were carried out on order of the reviewing officer.

May Be Final Week

Altho claiming to be chief of the judge advocate section, the witness contrived to make himself appear as little more than an office boy—presumably realizing that he was in line as a potential war criminal in view of the numerous court-martial cases and their drum head nature.

Yamashita's trial now is into its sixth and, according to the best estimates, final week.

FUND OF $100,000 SOUGHT TO HELP JEWISH ORPHANS

A campaign to raise $100,000 in Chicago to help care for Jewish war orphans in Russia was opened by the American Birobidjan committee at a dinner attended by 1,000 in the Stevens hotel last night. The money is to be used for hospitals in Stalingrad and in Birobidjan, an autonomous Jewish region in eastern Siberia, said Judge Harry M. Fisher, chairman of the Chicago division of the committee.

Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.] advocated strict observance of terms of the Potsdam agreement providing that German economic life be maintained at a low level. He criticized suggestions that the German living standard be allowed to increase, saying it is now the highest on the continent.

Maj. Gen. Ilya M. Sarayev, Russian military attaché to the United States, was one of the guests introduced by Judge Benjamin P. Epstein, who presided.

The committee is caring for 4,500 orphans, from eastern European countries, at Stalingrad and in Birobidjan.

REPORT CHIANG'S TROOPS 30 MI. FROM MUKDEN

Report Communist Force Enters City

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 3 [Monday]—(AP)—Vanguards of the Chinese Nationalist army today reached points within 30 miles of Mukden, Chinese Central News agency dispatches reported. The agency also said Nationalist troops would be flown into Manchuria starting next week.

The new Szechwan daily asserted that a new Sino-Russian agreement on Manchuria was taking shape in negotiations which it said "are proceeding satisfactorily." This would supplement the agreement under which Russian withdrawal from Manchuria was deferred a month to enable Nationalist administration troops to take over.

Joint Control Forecast

Such an agreement probably would concern joint Sino-Russian control of the more important enterprises in Manchuria.

Yesterday Nationalist forces were reported to have reached Tahushan, where Chinese Communists earlier were said to have dug in for a firm stand. Tahushan is 65 miles southwest of Mukden.

The China Times reported yesterday that troops of Gen. Chang Hsueh-shih, formerly depicted as supporting the Communists, had entered Mukden. However, other sources said Chang had dispatched emissaries to Nationalist headquarters at Chinhsien to surrender his Manchurian army, and there was uncertainty whether his force was pro-Nationalist or pro-Communist.

U. S. Trains Chinese Tars

Chang stipulated that if surrender terms were signed they must provide for the full freedom of his brother, "Young Marshal" Chang Hsueh-liang, who has been under surveillance since December, 1937, for the 12 day detention of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek at Sian.

Vice Adm. Barbey, 7th fleet commander, announced that United States naval personnel on Dec. 10 would begin training Chinese crews to operate amphibious vessels. The school, which will enroll 600 Chinese sailors and 60 officers, will be "for the purpose of providing Chinese crews for ships employed in effecting the surrender terms of Japan," Barbey said.

The fleet commander expressed hope that eventually they would replace U. S. sailors and permit their demobilization.

UNRRA DELIVERS FLOUR FOR THE LOAVES OF CHINA

U.S. Ship Brings Load for Coal Miners

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHINWANGTAO, China, Dec. 2—Much to the delight of the KMA [Kailan mining administration], an American ship this week unloaded 5,750 tons of American white flour here. Much of it will be passed on to the company's miners—for a price.

The flour, according to W. B. Chilton, local agent for the KMA, was provided by UNRRA. Chilton indicated all the flour was alloted to his company, but marine sources said the KMA would receive about half of it, the other half to be transshipped to the Taku-Peiping area.

Chilton said receipt of the flour would do much for the morale of the Chinese miners. It will be distributed to them in the Tangshan area, where the company operates China's biggest coal mines, and the cost of it will be deducted from the miners' pay, he said.

Barter Coal for Flour

Asked how the KMA would pay for the flour, Chilton said he presumes the flour will be on a barter basis for coal. All the coal produced at Tangshan is being disposed of by the fuel commission, headed by T. V. Soong, he added.

The marines said the UNRRA agent who arrived with the American ship to supervise disposal of the flour is Gordon Menzies of London, England, welfare specialist, China branch of UNRRA.

Chilton said the mines are now producing between 5,000 and 6,000 tons daily, but that rarely is more than 1,000 tons daily transported to Chinwangtao for shipment by sea to Shanghai, which needs about 5,000 tons daily for minimum requirements.

Marines Guard Trains

Whether British interests still control the KMA seems a moot question. Some Chinese sources say Chinese interests now hold 51 per cent of the stock, but Chilton said today he understands the stock is held on a 50-50 basis. The mines were developed with British capital. They reputedly founded the fortune of former President Hoover. During the war they were worked extensively by the Japanese.

The miners, in the early days after the Japanese surrender, feared to work in the mines unless protected by armed guards, because of fear of the Chinese Communists. Now they are able to commute freely between the mines and their homes, Chilton said. American marines, supplemented by Chinese Nationalist soldiers, are still riding the coal trains.

The marines say many of their buddies riding the trains have become well enough acquainted with the Communists in some areas between here and Tangshan to give them food and look the other way when they hear them sawing down telegraph poles.

"The marines say, 'Just some one cutting firewood'," one of the marines said.

MADRID, Spain, Dec. 2 (AP)—Shots fired into the air by police today broke up a fight in Valencia between 500 Carlists, demonstrating for the return of monarchy, and a group of members of Franco's Falange Youth front.

CHINA REDS CAN FIGHT 10 YEARS, LEADER ASSERTS

YENAN, China, Dec. 2 (AP)—Chinese Communists, altho anxious for peace, are prepared to fight a 10 year civil war, their chief of staff, Gen. Yeh Ching-yin, said today in an interview to which he devoted nine hours.

Yeh reviewed events leading to present strife in North China and concluded with the accusation that Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists had used the disarming of Japanese as a pretext to assault and try to annihilate the communist 8th route army.

He submitted what he said were captured government documents ordering wholesale attacks on Chinese Communists.

"There is hope for peace, but its realization depends on efforts of both sides, as well as the good will of foreign friends, especially America," Yeh asserted.

80,000 Killed or Wounded

He said more than 80,000 men have been killed and wounded in the two opposing forces since Japan's surrender. He termed the situation "very serious but not hopeless; we do not look on the present fight as all-out civil war, yet."

The last civil war, more than 10 years ago, lasted a decade, he said, altho it involved smaller forces and the Communists' position then was weaker.

"Today, with Communists strengthened thru reliance on the idea of a coalition government in contradiction to the old soviet plan," the war could last 10 years, he remarked.

He estimated the strength of Chinese Communists at more than 3,000,000 men and declared that they could sustain themselves for a decade without military aid from outside.

Charges Chiang Uses Japs

Gen. Yeh contended, however, that the Communists never had objected to Nationalist landings at Manchurian ports and would not oppose air borne movements into other sectors. At the same time, he said the Communists could not be responsible for acts of "popular armies" in Manchuria.

Communists soon will send seven delegates to Chungking to talk peace, he announced, but "without political democracy there will be only a false peace."

He charged the Kuomintang [Nationalist party] with a "double faced" policy during the Japanese war, asserting that it fought the Japanese with one hand and Communists with the other. Now that this war has ended, he alleged that Nationalists are using puppets and armed Japanese to continue their war with the Communists. He said 260 Nipponese soldiers were in a unit captured by Communists Nov. 29 and 40 in a police detachment captured Nov. 27.

Yeh said that 144 Nationalist divisions, totaling 1,200,000 men, were opposing the Communists.

ROLE IN CRUSHING NATIVE PEOPLES ANGERS INDIANS

Believe Need for Troops Bars Independence

BY E. R. NODERER
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

LONDON, Dec. 2—Use of Indian troops to suppress liberation movements in Java and Indo-China is inflaming public opinion in India, where the belief is widely held that the Indians are refused independence because the British need their troops to fight the empire's battles thruout the world.

The fact that the 5th Indian division has just conquered Soerabaja after bloody fighting is no isolated example. Indian troops—Gurkhas, Mahrattas, and Dogras—are serving in Indo-China and Java in campaigns, which, according to Indians here, are distasteful to many of them.

Indian circles, who have long been aware of the part their soldiers have played in the empire's far flung campaigns, are bitterly disappointed that the election of the Labor government failed to bring them any relief from the white sahibs' rule.

More than 200 years ago the East India company used Sepoys to expel its commercial rivals from India and to expand the territories under its control. This company, on which many British fortunes were founded, used Indian forces to defend its frontiers and extricate it from difficulties in many other parts of the world.

Fight All Over World

The term Sepoy first appears as the name of a military force in European service in hostilities lasting from 1721 to 1728, near Tellicherry on the Malabar coast. In 1748 Capt. Stringer Lawrence arrived at Fort St. David with the king's commission as major, to command all the East India company's troops in India.

Since then Indian troops have fought over a great part of the world—in Egypt, Abyssinia, Somaliland, Persia, Afghanistan, the northwest and northeast frontiers of India, Tibet, and China. During the last war, 1914-'18, the Indians saw service in France, Belgium, East Africa, Gallipoli, Palestine, Mesopotamia, Asia Minor, and Russia.

Helped Stop Germans

In the critical days of October and November, 1914, the Meerut and Lahore divisions helped stem the German advance. Again, in 1917-'18, while the British and French armies were engaged in the decisive struggle with the Germans in the west, Indian troops bore the brunt of the important operations in Palestine and Mesopotamia which eventually destroyed the Turkish armies and brought Turkey to her knees.

Alluding to the Christian merchants, a Chinese governor stated, in 1821, "They are a mercenary, gain-seeking set of adventurers whom reason cannot rule. The dread of not making money is that which alone influences them." The import of opium into China was illegal, yet it was the main means of financing Chinese exports at that time. When the East India company's trade monopoly with China ceased in the thirties of the last century, opium smuggling was intensified, and an open breach with China ensued.

Great Britain was a party to the opium war of 1839-'42, which resulted in extortion of trade concessions from the reluctant Chinese and the cession of Hong Kong to Britain.

War with Persia

Indian marines stationed in Bombay also saw service in the Persian gulf between 1830 and 1863. An expedition was launched to the Red sea in 1801 and to the Persian gulf in 1819. Aden was captured in 1839, and a war with Persia was waged in 1856, in which the Indians participated. The Indian navy aided the royal navy in the China war of 1840-'42, and the Indian vessel Elphinstone shared in the capture of Ruapetapeka, New Zealand, in 1846.

Indian troops were employed in an expedition against the Dutch in Ceylon in 1795, and in the occupation of Java in 1811. They also participated in the 1st, 2d, and 3d Burmese wars in 1824, 1852, and 1885, and in the 1st and 2d Afghan wars in 1839 and 1878.

During World War II. about 500,000 Indians served abroad, the 4th Indian division being renowned for its gallantry in Africa, and the Indian royal navy ranged from the North Atlantic to Java.

JAP ARTILLERY SHELLS NATIVE TROOPS IN JAVA

tributions of money to the Vienna state opera have been conscientiously noted without a single hint that both the food and money were derived originally from Austrian sources.

M.P.'s Article Cited

Excerpts cited by the Russian censorship authorities as objectionable at Friday's "press conference" indicated, however, that Russia's standard of press conformity is unexpectedly severe. The Arbeiter Zeitung, for instance, had printed an article by Michael Foot, British labor M. P., which asked whether England "must become a lackey either of the new kind of Russian imperialism or the older form of American capitalism."

"Who gave the Arbeiter Zeitung the right to 'write' such things?" the Russian censor asked indignantly.

A passage objected to in another issue pointed out that Austria's status was not clear since on one side the occupying powers had diplomatic relations with her while on the other, the occupation authorities, themselves, intervened directly. A third objection was to mention in an economic review of fact that some Austrian factories were occupied by allied troops and were thus not producing.

Charge Authority Challenged

A fourth was the statement in a review of international labor organizations that there had been "two internationals, a socialist workers international, and a communist international, based on unconditional subordination to needs of the soviet union."

The assembled publishers were informed that all such references challenged the authority of the allied council which was supreme in Austria's affairs. Asked whether other powers beside Russia did not also have a say in the council, the Russian censor replied that Russia would bring the matter to the council's attention.

SKIPPER OF LOST WARSHIP TO GO ON TRIAL TODAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2 (AP)—Capt. Charles McVay, skipper of the cruiser Indianapolis which sank July 30 with heavy loss of life after a mysterious explosion, will face a navy court-martial tomorrow.

McVay, 47, who commanded the ship when it went down en route from Guam to Leyte after delivering atomic bomb material, will answer charges growing out of loss of the 10,000 ton ship. The trial will be public.

The navy, which withheld detailed charges against McVay, said the court will be concerned only with his responsibility for the cruiser.

The ship sank 15 minutes after the explosion. Survivors were in the water four days before a navy seaplane sighted them and summoned help. Of 1,196 on the ship, 880 were listed as dead or missing and 316 wounded.

NEHRU PREDICTS ACTION IN INDIA AFTER ELECTIONS

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 2 (AP)—Jawaharlal Nehru, leader of the Indian National Congress party, said today he expected the British to take quick action after the forthcoming elections to turn the Indian government over to the Indians, or others will take the initiative.

Nehru said he expected the administration of India to form a central government after the elections next spring, "representing the democratic forces within the country." Then, he said, should follow the setting up of a constituent assembly.

Nehru asserted that the activities of the Indian National army, organized in Burma to fight against the British, and the present trial of its officers had had the effect of bringing the army closer to the people. Heretofore most Indians had considered the army as something apart from themselves, he said.

GERMAN HATRED OF YANKS BARED BY ARMY SURVEY

Resistance Movement Found Strong

FRANKFURT, Germany, Dec. 2 (AP)—A secret survey by American intelligence officers disclosed today said German resentment against American occupation methods is developing into bitter hatred, with growing talk of resistance.

The 20,000 word report was compiled by two American intelligence officers and two trusted Germans and disclosed what Germans are talking about. Even among some clergymen and Germans who profess pro-allied sympathies, the view is held that the American military is involved in red tape, and suffers from lack of policy.

The report pictured Germany as a land of groaners, and quoted one civil servant as saying "the only thing Germans would be able really to agree on would be some form of resistance."

The council of the Evangelical church in Germany made a formal protest to the inter-allied control council charging injustices in the denazification program, the report disclosed.

Talk of "Freikorps"

"This campaign in the American zone will not exterminate Hitlerism," clergymen said. "Indeed danger exists that Hitlerism will win new adherents."

The report said that mention of a new "Freikorps" [illegal military formation] was frequent, and that it was expected desperation and idleness of youth will have violent consequences.

"The Germans indicate their apprehension in various ways," the report stated. "One university intends to keep a sharp lookout for the formation of nazi and communist cells, while parents fear that their children will form into gangs."

Clergymen and laymen were of the opinion that the American policy is "resentful of the church's position as a defender of rights and suspicious of the church as an educational force."

Cardinal Is Ignored

Asserting that this has been evident in the Catholic hierarchy, the report said "One Catholic priest had to be restrained by his superior from delivering strongly anti-American sermons."

The Evangelical church protest stated, "We never let it remain in doubt that we do not consider it possible to leave devoted adherents of Hitler in leading positions. Today, however, we find above all in the American zone that in cases of dismissals no investigation is made whether the former party members joined the party under pressure. We find that many persons are being arrested or dismissed who did not even belong to the party and some whom at the risk of their existence fought against national socialism."

The protest said Cardinal von Faulhaber was ignored some weeks ago when he "drew attention of the military government to injustices that are being committed daily in the dismissal of former National Socialists."

Permit Polish Outrages

The clergymen protested too against the "freedom accorded the Poles and other foreigners when they take their revenge on the German people for evils which the nazis inflicted on them"

The clergymen charged that the American army stands by at these acts of outrage while UNRRA encourages their activity.

The intelligence investigators heard some Germans talking of organizing vigilante bands against the displaced persons, while many others felt groups may be organized to punish fraternizing women.

The report said a feeling of hopeless despair is voiced by virtually the whole German nation, with demands that something be done to help rebuild the country.

URGES DIVORCE OF ARMY, CIVIL RULE IN REICH

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Germany, Dec. 2—"The absolute divorcement of the army of occupation from the military government thruout Germany, and especially Berlin, is the first requisite for efficient administration of the reich, and a clear cut clarification of policy concerning treatment of civilians is the second necessity," a United States army colonel today told THE TRIBUNE.

"Washington officials must realize the difference between the tasks of the army of occupation and the military government," the colonel said. "The garrison troops are combat men trained to maintain order and protect military government personnel, and ensure that the Germans carry out their directions. The military government is for administration and putting the reich back on its feet, and has nothing to do with military matters. Most of the military government personnel are becoming civilian, altho a few army people remain with the organization.

Boundaries Are Scrambled

"At the present time, purely military affairs are hopelessly scrambled with military government activities and with conflicting orders from higher levels, and there is no defined boundary.

"For instance, the Berlin military government is tied up as part of the Berlin army garrison, instead of being included in the group control commission which administers all the rest of Germany.

"The military government establishment in Berlin is thus under the orders of the commanding officer of the Berlin garrison. Nobody knows whether Gen. Clay, at group control, is under McNarney or not, and nobody wants to make a test case. Every one tacitly accepted Gen. Eisenhower's over all authority because of his war record, but with the change in command it's a different situation.

What is Hard Peace?

"The next most pressing need is a detailed, concrete statement of policy toward the Germans. Eisenhower stated the intention of making a hard peace, and McNarney immediately reiterated it on his arrival in Frankfurt. But what does a hard peace mean?

"We all realize that certain factors in America make the executives in Washington fearful of substituting clear instructions for abstract directives. But nobody dares state an alternative policy and define how to apply a reasonable attitude toward the Germans, for fear of being attacked as an advocate of a soft peace.

"As long as that timidity persists we shall get nowhere in the self-appointed task of democratizing the Germans and teaching them American concepts of freedom and liberty," the colonel concluded.

DIES OF BULLET WOUND

John Rutkowski, 63, of 11721 Lowe av., former war plant worker, died in Roseland Community hospital yesterday an hour after he was found in his home with a bullet wound in his right temple. His wife told police he had been brooding because he could not find a new job.

Berlin's Tenth Newspaper to Appear in Red Zone

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (AP)—Berlin's 10th newspaper, the Russian-licensed Night Express, is scheduled to appear within a week. The daily will employ German personnel and have no affiliations with political parties or occupying armies. It will be the seventh paper published in the Russian sector of Berlin. Those published in other sectors are the American-licensed Der Tagesspiegel, the British army's Der Berliner, and the French army's Der Kurrier.

U. S. AGREES TO GIVE STILWELL ROAD TO BURMA

Army Surpluses Will Be Sold

BY ALFRED WAGG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 2.—After weeks of bickering and charges that the Americans were destroying surpluses of army supplies badly needed by Burma's civilians, an agreement has been reached between the United States foreign liquidation commission and the Burmese government. The agreement followed meetings last week between Gov. Reginald Dorman-Smith and Walter Schleiter, liquidation commissioner.

The terms, Schleiter revealed, include America's agreement to make a gift to Burma of the Irrawaddy river pontoon bridge, the world's longest bridge of its type. Estimated to have cost more than $700,000, the present salvage value of the bridge is said to be only about $80. The bridge was given to Burma officially as of Nov. 29. Another gift to Burma was the $147,000,000 Stilwell road, complete with bridges and equipment.

Will Sell What's Left

In return the American liquidation commission was given the right to sell surpluses estimated at approximately 49,000 tons of equipment, now reduced by 10,000 tons which have been shipped for sale to India. Since the remaining equipment is of insufficient value to make it worth while to ship it even as far as India, the deal is seen by the commissioner as a worthwhile salvaging of American taxpayers' money.

Besides, Schleiter's agreement makes it possible for American troops in northern Burma to be released by Dec. 15 or thereabouts. This is most urgent since deserters from the old Chinese army in Burma are looting and in general causing much trouble, most of them being armed. The Gurkhas already have gone into action, and Burma's military authorities expect to take early action.

$750,000 Worth Sold

Schleiter also is happy over this deal since it allows America to sell in Burma to civilians for Indian rupees, the subsequent exchange of which already has been arranged for under an agreement with the government of India.

In a few days the American commission already has sold, mainly to Indian residents of Burma, $750,000 worth of surpluses, including such items as uniforms, tents, vehicles, ice plants, gasoline, and engineering and road equipment. The Burma government, however, still is holding off and has made no purchases since London still claims the possibility of a free gift of more surplus property and has failed to authorize the Burma government to buy anything for cash.

British Church Damage Lighter Than Expected

LONDON, Dec. 2 — Damage to churches by enemy action in Britain was on a lighter scale than had been expected, a report of the central council for the care of churches says. Coventry cathedral was the only medieval church of first rank to be destroyed, altho English Renaissance churches suffered much damage and destruction.

EX-MARINE, 82, FOUND IN JAPAN; GETS HIS WISH

SAGA, Kyushu, Dec. 3 [Monday] (AP)—A marine intelligence patrol located an 82 year old American in the hills of this southern Japanese island and gave him the "one more thing I want in life"—a chance to see a full dress marine corps parade.

He is Edward Zillig, who said he was a marine veteran of the Spanish-American war and holder of the congressional medal or honor. His home was in Nagasaki, where he was a watchmaker, but he escaped the atomic bombing because in 1941 the Japanese removed him to an internment camp. He said he was treated better than usual for prisoners of war.

Zillig, in camp when the world's second atom bomb fell on Nagasaki, told marine correspondent Cpl. Don Madden "it was horrible and bloody." Born in Switzerland, Zillig was brought to the United States when three years old. He joined the marine corps at Philadelphia in 1888. In 1918 he became a clerk in the Chinese government's revenue department. A tour of Japan in 1927 prompted him to settle down here.

ARGENTINE COPS BREAK UP PERON DEMONSTRATION

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 2 (AP)—Mounted and infantry police charged into a group demonstrating for former Vice President Juan Peron today, as disorders broke out for the third successive Sunday in front of the Catholic Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Apparently no one was injured, but several persons were arrested for carrying firearms.

The disturbances at the church started Nov. 18, when a group of women walked out of services, protesting that politics had been injected in the church.

HAUSHOFER, NAZI MYTH EXPONENT, SUFFERS STROKE

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 2 (AP)—Dr. Karl Haushofer, whose teachings of geopolitics to the Hitler clique almost caused him to be landed in the prisoners box at Nuernberg as a defendant, is near death at his home near Munich, it was learned today.

Dr. Karl Haushofer

The 76 year old exponent of the nazi superman myth suffered a stroke three days ago, according to a letter from Haushofer's wife to Rev. Dr. Edmund Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown university.

Father Walsh, on leave to Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson as an expert consultant on matters of religious persecution, studied thousands of words of Haushofer's microfilmed lectures, speeches and magazine articles before it was decided not to indict the aging educator as a war criminal.

Head of Finland's War Crime Court Asks to Quit

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 2 [Sunday] — (AP) — Supreme Court President Hjalmar Neovius has asked the government to relieve him of his duties as presiding justice of the Finnish war crimes court for "health reasons," it was learned today. The move followed strong leftist criticism of the previous handling of the trial which has been in adjournment since Nov. 17. Neovius cast his vote for the release of former Finance Minister Vaino Tanner and three other Finnish war time leaders pending a resumption of the trial Dec. 10.

RED MEDDLING IN U. S. AFFAIRS UNDER SCRUTINY

Sensational Disclosures Likely in Inquiry

terest of Russia in this country was demonstrated in the scandal of the stolen secret documents. When the theft of these top secret documents was discovered and investigated. Acting State Secretary Grew and Director Hoover of the FBI caused the arrest of six persons. They included John S. Service, one of 10 state department employes whom Hurley compelled Washington to recall for undermining his policies. The others were Emmanuel S. Larsen of the department's far eastern division; Andrew Roth, a former navy lieutenant; Mark Gayn, a free lance writer; Philip Jaffe, and Kate Louise Mitchell, co-editors of Amer-Asia, a pro-Communist magazine.

Three Exonerated

Dondero said investigation so far had disclosed that Service and two others were exonerated, that Jaffe and one other were let off with fines. The disposition of the sixth he had been unable to determine up to date. Jaffe pleaded guilty and was fined $2,500.

According to Dondero, the Communist agents stole scores of documents from the state department, the office of the chief of naval intelligence, the office of strategic services, postal and telegraph censorship, and others. Among the documents were the following:

1. Secret navy department plans dealing with the schedule and targets for the bombing of Japan. The document was in the possession of Jaffe and his associates last spring before the bombardment began.

2. "Top secret" navy department reports dealing with the disposition of the Japanese fleet subsequent to the major naval engagements of October, 1944, giving the location and class of each Japanese warship.

3. Secret report on the situation in the far east, stolen from the office of postal and telegraph censorship.

Report on Chiang Forces

4. A 22 page report, stolen from the office of military intelligence, containing information obtained from Japanese prisoners of war.

5. A lengthy, detailed report showing the complete disposition of the units in the army of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, where located, how placed, under whose command, naming the units division by division and showing their strength.

Dondero asked whether it was the possession of this information that enabled the Chinese Communists to forestall the Chinese Nationalist forces in accepting the surrender of Japanese forces. The congressman said that Tung Pi-yu, Chinese Communist delegate to the San Francisco conference, flew to New York for a 5 hour conference with Jaffe and Earl Browder, then head of the Communist Political association.

ARAB COUNCIL VOTES BOYCOTT OF ZIONIST TRADE

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 2 (AP)—The Arab league council, in a move to throttle Jewish trade in Palestine, decided today to boycott all Zionist industry.

If the council's decision is approved by delegates of the league's seven member nations, the action would mean the loss of all middle east outlets for Palestine's rapidly expanding industries.

A statement said the actual provisions of the boycott would be announced tomorrow by Abdul Rahman Azzam Bey, secretary general of the league.

PRAGUE GETS NAZI LINKED TO LIDICE HORROR

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 2 [Reuters]—Harald Wiesmann, former Gestapo chief of Kladno near Prague, said to be one of the men responsible for the destruction of Lidice, the "martyred" Czech village, has been brought to a Prague prison, the Czech ministry of the interior announced today.

Wiesmann will provide evidence against Karl Hermann Frank, former German minister of state and senior SS official in the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia, and will later be tried himself.

United States authorities handed Wiesmann over to the Czechs in November, while Frank was brought to Prague in August, after having been a prisoner in the United States zone of Germany. When examined earlier, Frank is stated to have said that Lidice was destroyed on the personal order of Hitler, and that "hardly more than 2,000 persons were killed."

LEFTISTS SEEK KEY POSTS IN ITALY CABINET

ROME, Dec. 2 (AP)—An unexpected leftist demand for two key cabinet posts added new difficulties today to attempts of Foreign Minister Alcide de Gasperi to form a new Italian government.

As the political crisis which has prevented formation of a government went into its eighth day, the Socialists and Action party were understood to have insisted on both the interior and foreign affairs portfolios.

A source close to De Gasperi said the Christian Democratic leader would never yield both posts to the left wing.

WAR'S ILLUSIONS GONE, PREACHER AT U. OF C. SAYS

World War II. was described as a "curious" conflict by the preacher yesterday in Rockefeller Memorial chapel, University of Chicago, because, he said, it was "fought without enthusiasm and without any too profound moral convictions." The preacher was Dean of Students Lawrence A. Kimpton and professor of philosophy at the university.

Altho the war will have vast effects, Dean Kimpton said, yet "we shall not have the same wave of disillusionment that followed World War I. There isn't much to be disillusioned about. We already know that it was a dirty business compounded of blood, sweat, and tears."

"But in some deeper sense, there will be an utter and complete disillusionment, the kind that looks forward to an unendurable world without an end, a life without a ray of hope. We have come to the end of the line. Man has proved rather conclusively that upon the basis of his present thought forms he cannot get along with his fellows."

HOUSING COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL TO VISIT NEW YORK PROJECTS

Five Chicago aldermen who are members of a council subcommittee on emergency housing will depart today immediately after the council meeting for New York where they will inspect housing projects and investigate large investments by insurance companies in such housing.

The subcommittee is headed by Ald. Moss [5th] and is a part of the council housing committee which has been charged with investigating the possibility of inducing private capital to augment housing projects which it is expected will be erected with federal and municipal funds during the next five years. Other members of the committee are Ald. Pacini [10th], Harvey [2d], Bieszczat [26th], and Hilburn [47th].

Altho other members of the committee will return to Chicago on Friday, Moss plans to go on to Washington, D. C., where he will make a plea for additional temporary housing units owned by the government but needed here for emergency homes for war veterans and their families.

FIGHT EXPECTED ON BILL FOR CZAR OF U. S. HOUSING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2 [Special]—Stiff opposition was indicated today for a proposal to create a housing czar as the house banking committee prepared to open hearings on the measure tomorrow.

The bill, written by Rep. Patman [D., Tex.], would establish an office of housing stabilization, headed by a director empowered to set price ceilings on homes, give housing priorities to veterans, allocate building materials, and coördinate federal housing programs.

Rep. Hebert [D., La.] branded the proposal "the first sign post on the road to permanent regimentation of American lives."

LAND FLOODING STILL ISSUE IN TVA EXPERIMENT

590,700 Acres Remain in Inundated Areas

BY ARTHUR EVANS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 2 — Flood control and navigation and the drowning of fat river bottom lands by the dams of the Tennessee Valley authority remain controversial subjects in discussions of the TVA experiment.

TVA as of June 30, 1944, had bought 1,081,553 acres for its reservoirs at a cost of $67,824,000. Of these acres 462,700 are lying below normal pool levels and are permanently submerged, while 128,000 other acres are subject to occasional inundation depending on fluctuation of pool levels—a total of 590,700 acres in six of the seven valley states.

Of that number 339,600 acres are in Tennessee, which is almost completely a TVA power state.

53,732 Persons Relocated

Crop and pasture lands wholly flooded by the TVA reservoirs cover 298,000 acres of the 462,700 at the bottom of the pools. And of these TVA says 208,000 were subject to periodic flooding.

A total of 13,433 families, which at 4 to a family would mean 53,732 persons, had to be relocated because their farms were in the reservoirs.

In fairness to TVA it may be mentioned that a substantial amount of the total permanent flooding was due to government orders for more dams during the national defense and war periods.

Critics of TVA argue that in submerging permanently or periodically 590,700 acres TVA, by reason of its power program which requires much "dead storage" to get a good head of water for the turbines, is flooding more land than the 66,000 acres nature did in major flood time. It is one of the several arguments raised against a Missouri Valley authority modeled upon TVA.

Back in 1930, army engineers figured that for adequate navigation purposes low head dams could be built in the Tennessee river at a cost of $74,709,000. As to power the army engineers took the position that if possibilities of power were to be realized private interests should supply all funds above the 74 million cost of low dams.

Likewise the army engineers figured total damage of floods in the valley, including tributaries, at $1,784,000 annually. Rep. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the military committee of the house, said in a committee hearing at Washington, D. C., last April that if the federal government had gone into the market and bought up 56 million dollars of 3 per cent bonds it would have got a yearly yield "sufficient to carry an insurance policy against all such floods in history."

This criticism is not a new one. He argues that the book figure of 78 million dollars for the part of TVA costs allotted to flood control as of June 30, 1944, is too high, an old item of controversy.

The same army engineers report said the area in the Tennessee valley originally susceptible to major floods totaled 666,154 acres, of which about two-thirds was river bottoms and the rest uncultivated. It included urban and industrial property of high value in Chattanooga and Knoxville.

TVA says that the 128,000 acres in the reservoirs which are subject to occasional inundation—once in five years perhaps—are productive agricultural land in use, even tho sometimes flooded in winter or early spring. Of this area 103,000 acres are in Kentucky reservoir.

The Douglas reservoir area on the French Broad river, not far from Knoxville, stirred great controversy before the war. It was fought by Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.], by the Tennessee Farm bureau, and others because it would permanently flood one of the finest, fertile bottoms in the state.

The opponents said the Douglas area was the most important vegetable and canning center in the south. Highly developed in the last 40 years, its products are valued at one and a quarter million dollars a year. They suggested building a steam plant instead.

Reason for the Hurry

The war settled the controversy, for the government ordered Douglas dam to be built in a rush, as it did Cherokee on the Holston river, Fontana on the Little Tennessee, three great storage dams on the tributaries, and smaller dams on the creeks.

It is explained that a dam at Douglas could be put in faster than a steam plant, for turbines are simple compared to steam plants. Douglas was built in less than 13 months and TVA officials say they did not learn why the hurry was ordered until the first atomic bomb was dropped on Japan and the secret of the Oak Ridge plant, where 75,000 persons were employed, was made public.

ALBANIA HOLDS FIRST ELECTION IN 21 YEARS; HOXLA SEEN WINNER

TIRANA, Albania, Dec. 2 (AP)—Albania's first national election in 21 years was held today without incident and altho the results were not expected before late tonight, it is generally accepted that Premier Enver Hoxha's Democratic Front ticket would be named intact.

A field of 20 independent candidates—narrowed to 18 by last minute withdrawals—was offered in the districts where Hoxha and his ministers were not running. They are not classified as opposition candidates, however. A previous announcement that negative votes would not be permitted was amended last night and boxes for negative votes appeared.

Early returns on votes cast up until noon showed that 52 per cent of Tirana's electorate and 65 per cent of the voters in Durrazo voted. The Democratic Front newspaper Bashkimi said Hoxha's ticket of 82 candidates expected to get 85 per cent of the vote.

TALK OF WORLD STATE SCORED BY RED PAPER

MOSCOW, Dec. 2 (AP)—A foreign affairs commentator in Pravda, Communist party organ, said today that discussions of a world state—advocated on several occasions by British Foreign Secretary Bevin—were injuring the united nations organization.

Without mentioning Bevin by name, the reviewer asserted that "foreign proposals" for a world state offered no panacea for war and atomic bomb dangers and said the arguments in favor of such proposals were "little convincing."

BRAZIL ELECTS PRESIDENT; FIRST VOTE IN 15 YEARS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 2 (AP)—Heavy voting was reported thruout Brazil today as the nation elected a president for the first time in 15 years and chose a congress which will draft a new constitution.

There was no immediate indication how the race was going among the four presidential candidates. The official count will not begin until tomorrow and final results may not be available for eight or 10 days.

A report from Porto Alegre, capital of Rio Grande do Sul, home state of former President Getulio Vargas, said, however, that Vargas, a candidate for the federal senate had received a heavy vote thruout the state.

Dutra, Gomes Strong

Vargas's candidate for president, Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra, was one of two pre-election favorites. Gen. Eduardo Gomes, another favorite, had shown considerable strength in the federal district and in northern Brazil where he served as air commandant during the war.

The other candidates were Yeddo Fiuza, a non-Communist supported by the Communists, and Mario Rollin Telles, Agrarian candidate Fiuza entered the campaign only 15 days ago and Telles made no attempt to campaign.

It was apparent from the long lines at the polls that a large percentage of the nation's 7,613,339 registered voters were participating in what was undoubtedly the freest election in the history of Brazil.

No Disturbances Reported

Army and police forces were stationed at the voting booths to insure order, but no disturbances had been reported at a late hour. The tension of the past weeks appeared to have been replaced by a holiday atmosphere.

The voters, many of whom had never cast a ballot before, chatted gaily as they waited their turn.

Many business houses and private homes flew the Brazilian flag in observance of the restored voting privileges.

Extra trolley service was provided in the capital to insure that voters could get to the polls easily. State and municipal trucks were used in many rural districts to carry voters to the polls. They were under instructions to provide transportation for members of all parties.

Berle Observes Election

United States Ambassador A. A. Berle Jr., accompanied by his secretary, toured Rio de Janeiro during the polling, apparently to observe conditions under which the election was carried out.

The election was the climax of a stormy campaign which began shortly after Vargas was ousted by the army Oct. 29 on charges that he failed to guarantee the holding of elections. He was replaced by Jose Linhares, chief justice of the federal Supreme court, to serve until after the voters chose a new president.

ASKS HEARINGS ON BILL TO BAN PEACE DRAFT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2 (AP)—House Republican Leader Martin [Mass.] called on the military committee tonight to start hearings on his bill for an international ban on compulsory military service.

He asked in a letter to Chairman May [D., Ky.], which he made public, that the military group conduct the hearings before a decision is reached on a pending bill for a universal military training program requested by President Truman.

His request came at a time when sponsors of the program were acknowledging to reporters they fear the President's proposal for a year's training will be killed.

Martin's resolution would call upon the President, the secretary of state, and the President's representative on the allied nations organization to "work unceasingly for an immediate international agreement whereby compulsory military service shall be wholly elliminated from the policies and practices of all nations."

GETTING THE TRUTH

The congressional investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster has developed a great deal of evidence which was suppressed for almost four years and which undoubtedly would not have seen the light of day but for the energy of the Republican members in dragging the facts from reluctant witnesses. That the facts are beginning to hurt is evidenced by the anguished howls of "Politics!" raised by the Democratic members of the committee and by such other New Dealers as Sen. Tunnell and Postmaster General Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

It must be admitted, however, that the whole truth yet has to be brought into the open. The witnesses are evidently reluctant and all of them have been less than frank. Some have been caught in evasions and misstatements, while others, notably former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, have adopted a spurious pretense of rectitude expressed in terms of indignation that any one should dare to challenge their motives, their acts, or their explanations of things committed or omitted.

There is a concerted plan to cover up and mislead the investigators which has been abetted by the committee counsel and of the New Deal majority of the committee. These men are members of the same political party as the inner members of the Roosevelt administration who have been summoned as witnesses to account for their contribution to the disaster, and who have shown by their responses under questioning that they consider themselves defendants.

President Truman recognized the damaging character of the evidence which could be developed when he supported the successful effort to load the committee with six New Dealers to four Republicans, and to place the inquiry under the direction of his senate majority leader, Alben Barkley. He had a reasonable assurance when the deck was stacked in this fashion that, whatever the evidence, the majority report would constitute a whitewash of President Roosevelt's war policies.

The appointment of committee counsel followed the pattern. William D. Mitchell, a lifelong Democrat, was given the post of counsel. A phony claim to impartiality could be made in his behalf because of his almost forgotten services as attorney general in a Republican administration. The state department, which is vitally concerned with the investigation because Hull is in it up to his neck, assigned Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson to protect its interests. Mr. Acheson got his law partner, Gerhard R. Gesell, appointed assistant chief counsel.

Mr. Gesell has distinguished himself so far for his solicitude in steering Mr. Hull thru an examination which has spared him any embarrassing questions. Only Gesell and the Democratic committee members have been putting questions to Mr. Hull, who has availed himself of the protection by getting away from the facts and making political speeches. He has shown himself resentful of any suggestion that he ever was capable of error and, instead of confining himself to the actual events which brought about the debacle on Dec. 7, 1941, has been making orations about America's moral obligation to go to war four years ago. All of that is irrelevant and immaterial, and nobody knows it better than Mr. Hull.

Mr. Hull's penchant for talking politics instead of honestly explaining what motives or orders persuaded him to rush the country into war when it was unready and the fleet was exposed is understandable. No one will suffer in permanent reputation as much as he when all the facts are brought out, unless it is Franklin Roosevelt. If the New Dealers have their way, the facts will not be brought out. It is up to the minority members of the investigating committee to get them. The country will be satisfied with nothing less than the whole truth.

ANOTHER BEAST IN GERMANY

Our soldiers in Germany have been saving candy bars to give to German children at Christmas. All such preparations now have been ordered stopped. It seems that Gen. McNarney, upon succeeding Gen. Eisenhower in command, said that there must be no softening toward the Germans, and accordingly there is to be no sentimental nonsense about brotherhood and good will this Christmas.

A recent dispatch from Washington forecast that the publication of Mr. Byron Price's report on the occupation would signal the adoption of a more humane policy than Mr. Truman approved at Potsdam. Evidently the expectation was unwarranted. Certainly, Gen. McNarney yet hasn't been told that he can hold his job without giving full play to all the brutality and meanness of which he and Mr. Truman are capable.

There is no lack of hate in the world today and no lack of men so stupid as to believe that peace can be born of hate. That we knew, but we confess we were not prepared to hear that the blood feud was to be pursued in all its vindictiveness against little children, by order of an American general. We did not expect that Christmas in the American zone of occupation was to be devoted to teaching American boys that everything they learned in their homes and churches was a lie and to teaching German children that everything the Nazis told them about Americans was gospel truth.

THE MONTREAL STAR

The executive editor of the Montreal Star took exception recently to our editorial comment on the fact that the city council of Montreal annually appropriates $10,000 for gratuities to reporters who cover its activities.

He said in his letter published in the Voice of the People that no employe of the Star had ever been permitted to accept such a payment, and called attention to THE TRIBUNE'S news story on the matter in which reporters for other English language newspapers in Montreal were quoted as saying that, with a single exception, none of them had ever taken the council's money. These facts were, by inadvertence omitted from the editorial commenting and we are glad to acknowledge them.

Mr. West of the Star went on to defend the standards of the Canadian press, which, he said, are fully as high as those of newspapers in the United States. This may be capable of proof, but Canadian newspapers could find a better champion.

The Star is a prosperous and well edited newspaper. It can be called a Canadian newspaper only by geographical location, not by editorial policy. It is in fact a British newspaper published in Canada.

The founder of the Star, Hugh Graham, was a native born Canadian of vast energy, wide charity, and a colonial devotion to England which completely extirpated his loyalty to his own land. No Canadian of the present generation would dare return home after making such a statement as Graham made in London in 1909: "For long years, Canada, under both parties, has been sponging on the motherland for protection. Both political parties in Great Britain have been too indulgent and too paternal to ask us to pay our share, and we have been too mean to offer it."

For his services in putting his fellow Canadians in their colonial place, Graham died in 1938 a peer and member of the house of lords, Baron Atholstan of Huntington in Canada and Edinburgh in Scotland. In a Canada presently concerned with its own citizenship and its own flag, the newspaper which bears the strong imprint of his character should hardly presume to speak for the national press.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

Christmas shopping is off to a flying start and already it is clear that finding suitable gifts this year will not be easy. The husband buying for his wife faces a problem. Standard items such as leather goods, lingerie, and candy are less plentiful than ever before. At that, it will be easier for men to find gifts for women than women to find things for their men. This is because service men have swept the markets clean of clothes and accessories. The ladies overcome the handicap, however, with their natural talents for shopping. From a preliminary survey of the scene it appears that higher priced articles in general are more plentiful than inexpensive ones. This year it is easier to find durable articles for the household than flimsy ones for the members of it.

It is clear that goods have not come back on the shelves as rapidly as was forecast in statements made right after victory was won. A key government official made some statements in a speech a few days ago, blaming others for the delay. That makes it necessary to point out that the OPA is responsible for the condition that prevails and the enthusiastic supporters of that unit of government should be as willing to recognize that as its critics. Labor and material costs are up. Spending money has expanded. The 1942 prices are too low for those producers who barely made a profit with costs what they were then. Meanwhile, the number of those willing and able to pay 1942 prices has gone up. There is too much demand and too little supply. Buyers fortunate enough to find what they want often get great bargains.

Quality of some merchandise has suffered because OPA has denied small increases to experienced manufacturers, while giving the green light to the inexperienced. Lew Hahn, head of the Retail Dry Goods association, put on a show of these inconsistencies in the house of representatives recently. He displayed a toy scooter for which a manufacturer was denied permission to charge $1.92, together with an inferior one for which another manufacturer was permitted to charge $3.75. He also showed bathrobes for $6.87 and $15 under like conditions, curtains at $1.64 and $3.10, and many other items.

The Illinois Federation of Retail Associations has described the situation as follows in a letter sent to members of the Illinois delegation in congress: "Good merchandise made by reliable pre-war manufacturers cannot get a high enough OPA price to build a good product. But some fly by night new company gets a high approved price for a cheaply built, overpriced new product." Delays by OPA in setting ceiling prices have reduced the holiday supply of radios by one-half. Strikes have increased since the President asked employers to raise wages without boosting their prices. Some kinds of goods as a result are less plentiful.

Reconversion Director John W. Snyder, in a speech in New York, said that there had been "increasing reports" that some manufacturing concerns were holding up delivery until after the first of the year to avoid the excess profits tax, which will not be in effect then. Accepting the reports as facts, he said that such a practice would keep goods from being available for the Christmas trade.

No manufacturer of gift merchandise is so stupid as to hold his wares past the holiday season. Competition to be the first to get the market is keen in nearly every line. Manufacturers seek to win the good will of their customers by supplying merchandise when others cannot. If any producers are hoarding goods Mr. Snyder ought to name them. Otherwise there is no escaping the conclusion that it is he and his associates who are responsible for damming the flood of goods to market.

DECEMBER ALMANAC

Over the week-end, the month of December turned up on the calendars, with quite a program of anniversaries. It brings winter's beginning, the Yuletide, and the year's ending, as every one knows, and also various other days, sacred, profane, historical, and legendary. Let us glance at the catalog.

* * *

3d—Civil war started in Greece in 1944. Since then, many American journalists have been buzzing around the Acropolis, trying to discover what all the shooting was about.

* * *

6th—St. Nicholas day, a forerunner of Christmas in several European countries. Quaint customs; small gifts for children. Nicholas became so popular among youngsters that his name was altered by their prattle into Santa Claus.

* * *

7th—The grimmest day in American history, but also, by coincidence, Delaware day in the state that is humorously called the duchy of du Pont.

* * *

13th—St. Lucy's day on the church calendar. She is the patron saint of the blind; according to one of her legends she blinded herself to escape from the sinful intentions of a man who was entranced by the beauty of her eyes.

* * *

14th—The 14 "halcyon days" begin. The weather is supposed to be mild, from which one may guess that this bit of folklore comes from a milder climate than our own. During this period the ancient Greeks thought that the kingfisher built floating nests on the calm Mediterranean.

* * *

22d—The winter solstice, popularly known as the shortest day in the year. From dawn to sunset the clock ticks off nine hours and two seconds.

* * *

24th to 28th—The religious core of the Christmas holidays, with the Eve, the Day, and the festivals of St. Stephen, St. John, and the Holy Innocents.

* * *

JOURNEY'S END

Proud and adventurous, long I have sailed
Wide and desolate reaches of foam,
But now comes the storm and, affrighting and dreary,
Deep gathers the smothering gloam.
O, pierce the dread darknesses here with the cheery
Beam of Thy light, for I'm fearful and weary—
O Lord, lead me home again, home.

I set out at morning, disdaining Thy care,
Thru the uncharted jungles to roam,
But, caught by the night and the torrents fast-falling,
Feet mired in the treacherous loam,
I cry out for help. Thru the shadows appalling,
Let me hear Thy sweet voice, like the Good Shepherd, calling—
Kind Lord, lead me home again, home!

Footnote to a Good Party

I retired to the outer fringe of the autograph hunters to enjoy my cocktail at the Line o' Type contributors' dinner.

"Mister," asked a blue-eyed brunette, "will you sign my Linebook?"

I clutched my drink in one hand, turned pages with the other, and held my pencil with my ear.

"I'll help," she said, taking the drink. "Thank you so much."

I finished the job and proffered the book in return.

"It's mother's book," she said, pointing behind me. I looked for mother, but no one was identifiable. When I turned around, the brunette had faded away.

I got another glass of olive juice and discovered the brunette across the room. This time she had a filled glass in each hand.

"Your mother's book," I suggested.

"Mother doesn't want me to drink another book," she replied.

"Can I help you autograph your drink?" I asked.

"My drink? Certainly. Take one," she said. "As a matter of fact, they were never mine in the first place."

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

G. Z. writes: "I have a 30 day furlough and have taken a job for 14 days. During this time I will earn $110. I have not earned any other money except my army pay during the last year and do not foresee any other earnings for the future year. Is it compulsory for my employer to deduct income taxes from a soldier's earnings when he is on furlough? If his earnings do not exceed the minimum for tax deduction at the end of the year, is it possible to recover the amount deducted? Where can I apply for the refund?"

Your employer must deduct income taxes from your $110 income, but since you do not earn the minimum amount necessary for tax purposes you may obtain refund by applying to the collector of internal revenue in the district where the tax was deducted.

W. S. writes: "I entered the army in 1940 at the age of 24 and have completed five years of service. Because of an overcrowded condition I cannot enter school until next September. In the meantime I am employed as an apprentice pressman. Under the apprenticeship plan I am entitled to receive up to $50 a month for subsistence. If I leave my apprenticeship next fall to go to school will the government still allow me the $50 for subsistence?"

Yes. When you quit working to take a full time college course you become eligible for subsistence allowance along with free tuition, books, and fees up to a maximum of $500 per school year. You must begin your college course two years after discharge or after the official end of the war, whichever is later.

THE RUNAWAY HEART

DURING the war many products became scarce, especially those imported from occupied countries. The housewife had trouble obtaining spices and the tire troubles of the motorist provided many conversation pieces. The druggist, too, was hard hit and found it difficult to replenish his dwindling supplies, including quinine.

The utility of this chemical is not confined solely to malaria. It is capable of soothing irritated muscles and, for this reason, is of value in relieving leg cramps. Its use in heart disease is well known and dates back almost a century. Appolzer expressed the opinion of this era when he placed it on a par with rest and digitalis. Today, instead of treating cardiac disorders with quinine we have a similar but more potent compound called "quinidine." This remedy has a small field and is helpful in correcting certain irregularities. It is in no way a substitute for digitalis, which is preferred when the heart muscle is weakened or damaged.

The pumping apparatus is a sturdy organ but, in some respects, is more sensitive than the average person realizes. This is, of course, as nature intended and all of us are aware of the changes which occur in its rate after excitement or emotional upsets. Mild exertion, such as standing up, may increase the rate 10 points. The pace is also influenced by toxins, fever, the drinking of tea and coffee, or smoking. These accelerations must be considered normal response to this type of stimulus.

Now and then patients are encountered who develop attacks in which the pulse becomes exceedingly rapid. One moment the rate is 80 and, in the next, it has jumped anywhere from 180 to 240. Such an episode may last a minute or even days, but it always passes as abruptly as it started. This is known as "paroxysmal tachycardia."

The victim usually complains of palpitation and likens the sensation to a trip-hammer, inasmuch as the beating is regular but "terribly fast." During the spell, a smothering feeling in the chest may be associated with giddiness and weakness. Many become frightened and anxious, turn pale, and break out in a cold sweat. Relief is experienced immediately when the normal rhythm is resumed; in a few the ordeal is exhausting.

Altho the cause is not known, there is reason to believe that an irritation exists along the nerve structures in the upper portion of the heart. During quiescent periods, the majority present no cardiac defects altho in some there is evidence of a previous rheumatic infection. While the attacks may be traced occasionally to the effects of caffein or nicotine, they may appear in the absence of these drugs. Quinidine serves to quiet the runaway tendency and aids in preventing recurrences.

In acute seizures of auricular fibrillation or flutter, the rate is not only increased but the rhythm is fitful. These are more frequently observed in the presence of organic trouble. When recognized early, quinidine may be useful but should the fibrillation be of long standing, other medicines are preferred. In the abnormality called "extrasystole," this therapeutic agent may also prove effective in lessening the irritability which is responsible.

Just as with quinine, an individual may be sensitive to the drug. Hives, ringing in the ears, nausea, and vomiting are sometimes noted. In the past, physicians were quick to condemn the preparation because they did not appreciate its limited sphere. There is a time and place for everything and, in those conditions in which quinidine is indicated, the results are striking.

L. C. W. writes: I have heard that a person troubled with constipation should not eat raw apples. Is this true?

REPLY

In general, the constipated person can enjoy this fruit raw as well as cooked. Now and then the bulk provided affords relief. If the colon is irritated, peeling may be advised.

UNRELATED

Mrs. T. writes: I have been told that I have sugar. Does this have anything to do with the change of life?

REPLY

Not at all, altho diabetes usually manifests itself in either sex between the ages of 40 and 50.

Books on the "Beautiful Isle"

Countless queries have been propounded from time to time, by questionnaire, merely around the fireside, or occasionally when talking to oneself about what you would take with you to a desert island. What books, what blondes, what touch of civilization? A comb, perhaps? A knife? A cigaret lighter and a bottle of fluid?

Perhaps because authors, those with typewriters at their fingertips seem to have a better chance of starting controversies, the question usually has revolved around books. The choosers, and the whole subject is beyond the realm of choice, anyway, as no one ever knows in advance he is going to be cast up on the desert island, generally select the biggest and longest books they can think of. But few castaways ever have come back, except in fiction, to tell authoritatively what most nourished their spirits.

Six hundred or so of the Americans taken prisoner at Bataan and Corregidor ended up their captivity on what the Dutch once named Ihla Formosa, the "beautiful isle." In 15 months there, they found one solace—the prison camp library of 2,000 volumes captured at Hong Kong and Shanghai and sent by the Japanese Y. M. C. A. Brig. Gen. Clinton A. Pierce, writing in the current Saturday Review of Literature, tells of the 25 books which the prisoners most enjoyed.

"Remember," he cautioned, "you are reading under conditions of extreme isolation, worry, and strain. If you were like us [on a desert island], you would select books that could sustain interest over a long period, not quickies which cannot satisfy. Many of us lost our taste for whodunits, light novels, love stuff, and modern adventure stories. Probably we had been thru all the adventures we could take. Our taste was for serious reading."

You might think they would like Dostoievsky, two of whose classics ["Crime and Punishment," "The Idiot"] were available. Not at all. They fell flat. His genius was too morose and too unhappy for men already unhappy enough. The two books fell near the end of the list.

Nine books were deemed excellent: Galsworthy's "Maid in Waiting," "Flowering Wilderness," and "One More River" [because of "his passion for justice"].

Hogben's "Mathematics for the Millions." ["It is loaded with sound philosophy as well as absorbing facts for artillery men who lived by mathematics until the last round was fired."]

Henry E. Link's "Return to Religion."

Robert Louis Stevenson's "The Master of Ballantrae" and "The Black Arrow" ["A magician with words. Read him slowly, and you'll see."]

Robert Graves' "Count Belisarius" ["Naturally of interest to soldiers. . . . while melodramatic, it was far enough back in history to be an escape for us"].

Albert E. Wiggam's "New Decalogue of Science."

Seven books were rated superior: "The House of Exile" by Nora Waln; "Along the Road" and "Ends and Means," by Aldous Huxley; "The Fort in the Forest," by Harvey Allen; "Adventures in Contentment," by David Grayson; "Now It Can Be Told," by Philip Gibbs, and "Sans Famille," by H. H. Malot.

The final nine, rated very satisfactory, included the two Dostolevsky books, "The Red Pony," by John Steinbeck; "Lassie Come Home," by Eric Knight; "Smoky," by Will James ["... the animal stories reminded us vividly of our love for horses and dogs, while imprisoned by people who care so little for dumb animals"], Stevenson's collected verse, and three books by Daniel Vare—"The Temple of Costly Expenses," "The Maker of Heavenly Trousers," and "The Gate of the Happy Sparrows."

To be savored fully, Gen. Pierce concluded, a book—a good book, that is—should be read slowly, with time off for meditation. He believes a reasonable amount of reading is fine: "But too much solitary reading, without recitations and quizzes, is a vice. It rots the mind."

THE CRUISE OF THE NEW JERSEY

TOKYO BAY, Nov. 14—We hope you will find space to print the true facts of the dirty deal given the U. S. S. New Jersey by the navy. This battle wagon was commissioned May 23, 1943. We still have part of that commissioning crew and others who came aboard before we sailed Jan. 2, 1944, from Norfolk, Va., for the Pacific. From then until April 14, 1945, we had only one leave, when we put back to Pearl Harbor to get Adm. Halsey and stayed there about 14 days. This meant four days' liberty, and the only liberty that the crew had in 16 months.

We rated nine battle stars in the Asiatic campaign and two in the Philippine liberation. Upon arriving in the United States May 4, 1945, we were allowed 24 days' leave and no traveling time. The ship pulled out for a trial run June 30. We anchored in Puget Sound July 1 and lay at anchor four days. Officers and CPOs were the only ones granted liberty. The enlisted men were not permitted to go ashore. We got under way July 5 for San Pedro, Cal. The only liberty for any one here was men having wives or mothers within a 50 mile radius of San Pedro, and there were few. We got under way again July 11 for simulated battle practice. This lasted till July 19. Then we anchored off San Pedro for a day only to get under way again for Pearl Harbor. At Wake Island, a few days later, we threw the last shells at the Japs in this war. We arrived in Tokyo bay Sept. 17, and have been here ever since.

About a month ago the "orders of the day" stated that we could write our families and friends that we would be in the United States around Dec. 20, but today's orders state the date has been postponed and we are not to leave until Jan. 18, 1946. Last Christmas was spent in Ulithi, sweating. The Christmas of '43 was spent in Boston for most of us. Adm. Spruance is already home for Christmas, tho, after going aboard the New Jersey as the new commander of the 5th fleet. The battleships Missouri and Wisconsin are nice and comfortable in an east coast port after eight or nine months' duty in the Pacific to our 22 months. The end of the month of November will be 23.

We believe the two greatest secrets kept in this war were the atomic bomb and the U. S. S. New Jersey.

46 MEMBERS OF THE CREW

MAKING WAR UNATTRACTIVE

Chicago, Nov. 27—I should like to suggest that in the event of another war, the enlisted personnel in both the army and navy, who are forced to risk their lives for their country, be paid approximately $100 a week for their services and that the defense workers, toiling in comparative safety with their families waiting at home in the evening, be paid about $50 a month, plus a family allowance. ETHEL C. BURGE

FOR OR AGAINST?

Chicago, Nov. 28—I see that the Republican committee is making up a slate for next November's election. When I see the slate, I will be able to tell whether they are preparing to be for or against the election of Mayor Kelly in 1947. J. MURPHY

THE STRIKE RECORD

Delphi, Ind., Nov. 15—When Roosevelt was running for his first term he chided the Hoover regime for having lost 5,000,000 man hours on account of strikes. Now we have 8,000,000 in 1944 alone. SUBSCRIBER

CIVILIANS WANT OUT, TOO

ADAK ISLAND, Nov. 16—There are civilian workmen here who have been trying to get out of here since the war with Japan ended.

The war department needed men and we responded. We were well paid and finished our job. But now the war is over and our jobs here are finished. Over a half a million dollars has been paid men for just putting in their time since the job was finished. The effort seems to be to make this a compulsory WPA project. Just keeping the men busy so that incompetent officers can retain their commissions and higher salaries than they could attain in the commercial world.

We, as civilians, signed a work agreement with the war department to work for them one year, transportation to be furnished on a 30 day notice when the year was up or the job completed.

We have completed our agreements and have also abided by the 30 day notice clause. Now the army contends that there is no available transportation, and we positively know it is mismanagement, and can prove it. For example, sending men from Nome and Umnak to Adak, which is farther from the states then their original position, then flying them to Anchorage or by boat to the States. Look at your maps and try to figure this out. We most certainly can't.

We do not wish priority over members of the army and navy. But we do not like to be any part of a program making this island look like an important military project, requiring our services, when we know that our jobs have been completed.

RAYMOND W. QUIGLEY

HE'S LOST HOPE

Portland, Ore., Nov. 10—I admire THE TRIBUNE'S guts in its attitude toward buccaneering Britain, but I cannot approve your policy when you would have us believe that we enjoy "free enterprise." We have monopolistic enterprise which insists on forcing "freedom" on everybody but their cooperative groups. I believe in protective organizations, too, but in this age of interdependence would it not be more logical to plan a national cooperative under the supervision of our ablest production engineers, social scientists, and biochemists? Our economy of manipulated price and artificially created scarcity, plus our 300 billion dollar debt has reached the end of the trail. No political party can make it function except by fascistic methods.

C. K. CHILBERG

THE NEW BARBARIANS

Wellington, Kas., Nov. 25—I was very much pleased with your editorial, "Hitlerism Triumphant," on Nov. 24. The Truman administration is carrying on with barbarism in place of Adolf Hitler.

W. J. BIEHL

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

PURSUE THE CLEWS

Chicago, Nov. 29—What is the proper procedure in locating one or more savings accounts of a deceased member of one's family who is known to have done banking with one or more city banks the locations of which are unknown. R. G.

It is a matter of following up clews in your possession. We suggest that you talk with the officers of the nearest banks and ask them to suggest others.

UNIONISTS BALK AT PLAN TO TURN OUT G. M. PARTS

Agreement Is Conditional, Says CIO Spokesman

Report Concessions

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 2 [Special—Negotiators for the Chrysler corporation and the CIO United Automobile Workers were reported tonight to have made major concessions to each other in their conferences over union wage demands. The expiration date of the contract between the union and the company has been moved ahead from last Friday until midnight Tuesday, it was learned, and there were indications the union might agree to a further extension if the reported friendly atmosphere of the negotiations continued.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 2 (AP)—A company proposal that production of auto parts be resumed in the strike idle factories of General Motors corporation met with complications today.

There seemed no immediate prospect for the suggested return to work of any of the auto parts builders of the striking CIO United Auto workers, whose 12 day old walkout over a demand for a 30 per cent wage increase has affected 225,000 G. M. workers.

Unionists in Flint, Mich., a UAW-CIO stronghold, took issue with the proposal.

A spokesman for the international union at the same time emphasized that President R. J. Thomas' acceptance of G. M.'s proposal to produce parts for other car companies—clients of G. M.—was made conditionally.

Thomas Issues Statement

Thomas said tonight that the international union "has no intention of arbitrarily and immediately ordering strikers back to work in the General Motors parts plants." He issued a statement in which he said he wished to correct "certain erroneous impressions which seem to have arisen from a misinterpretation" of his letter Saturday to General Motors on the subject of parts manufacture during the strike.

Labor and industry have disputed the extent to which other motor car manufacturers are dependent on General Motors in the supply of car parts such as spark plugs, fuel pumps, and ignition wiring.

UAW-CIO local 651 in Flint expressed itself as fearing "violence" in the event some strikers were permitted to return to work. The local also said such action would weaken the union's position.

A similar objection was voiced by the Flint Industrial Union council, which claims to represent 40,000 of the G. M. strikers.

The council said in a resolution that a return to work of some strikers would have the effect of "destroying morale" and might lead to "riot and bloodshed."

The council expressed itself as "condemning and opposing" the proposal and declared that the purpose of the union should be to "unify instead of divide our forces."

Charge Plants Abandoned

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2 (AP)—The CIO United Electrical Workers today said the General Electric and Westinghouse Electric companies are "abandoning" 15 government built war plants costing $132,000,000, and erecting new factories in small town, low wage areas.

James J. Matles, director of organization for the union, said in a statement that the plants being abandoned, located in industrial areas where the union is strong, "could have been converted speedily and have produced tens of thousands of radios, refrigerators, washing machines, and other electrical appliances for an appliance hungry public."

Navy Owns Plants

In Pittsburgh, Pa., a spokesman for Westinghouse said "There is no abandoning," and he added:

"The plants are not our plants. The navy has owned them right along, and we have simply been operating them for the navy.

"As to 'erecting new factories,' I don't know of a single construction job going on now."

An official of General Electric said in a statement issued in New York City that factories built by the government and the firm during the war "were constructed to meet conditions prevailing then and were not planned for conditions that might prevail in peace time."

PATTERSON SAYS RECRUITS WON'T FILL ARMY NEED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2 (AP).—War Secretary Patterson said today voluntary enlistments alone are not likely to keep the army up to minimum needed strength while combat veterans are being discharged.

"If we are to fulfill our goal of more than 7 million discharges in the period between V-E day and July 1, 1946, selective service inductions must continue," Patterson asserted in a statement prepared for the annual edition of the Army and Navy Journal, unofficial service publication.

"Otherwise," he added, "men who have already risked their lives in combat will have to remain in the army while those who have not served at all are exempted from any military duty."

AUSTRALIA REDS BLAMED IN CALL FOR BIG STRIKE

Miners, Seamen Ask 500,000 to Quit

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 2 (AP)—A tie-up involving 500,000 workers was threatened tonight as seamen and mine leaders prepared to call a general strike in support of 7,000 steel men in what newspapers said was a communist move to seize control from moderate leaders of the Australian Council of Trades Unions [ACTU].

The seamen already have decided to halt work at midnight on all ships carrying New South Wales coal—two-thirds of the country's supply—while miners in New South Wales will decide tomorrow whether to accept their federation's recommendation for a general strike.

Expect Power Cuts

Drastic cuts in use of electric power and railway service were predicted. Interstate rail service already has been cut because of smaller coal strikes in northern New South Wales.

Backing the strike of the ironworkers' federation are the seamen's union and the coal miners' federation. Australian newspapers reported all three of these groups have Communists in key positions.

Officials of the Australian Labor party, which controls the present government, and the Australian Council of Trades Unions have declared against the strikes and the powerful railway union and transport workers have decided to stay out of the dispute.

Reds May Demand Control

Newspapers said that if ACTU fails to control the strikes sponsored by extremist ironworkers, then the "communist inclined" governing bodies of those unions will demand control of the trades union movement.

The strike of the steelworkers started when a valve tender refused to take the job of feeding coal to a coke oven at Port Kembla and was discharged.

ADM. BARBEY SENDS HOME 17,000 MEN AND 137 7TH FLEET SHIPS

BY JOSEPH HEARST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ABOARD ADM. BARBEY'S FLAGSHIP ESTES IN LIAOTUNG GULF, CHINA, Dec. 2—Vice Adm. Barbey, commander of the 7th fleet, said today that by Dec. 10 he will have sent back to the United States 137 ships of all sizes and 17,000 navy personnel from the 7th fleet.

In addition he has assigned 59 large transports to the work of taking home returning soldiers, and has ordered home five squadrons of airplanes, about 60, along with two plane tenders. The order for the planes and tenders to return to the United States affects about 1,600 men. The troop transports are manned by 29,000 navy personnel.

Barbey said many of the ships being sent home are already en route, and that all of them should reach the west coast before Christmas.

Released on $40,000 Bail; Seized in Burglary Case

Less than 24 hours after he was released on $40,000 bail on an attempted burglary charge, Charles Blackwell, 29, Negro, 4928 St. Lawrence av., was arrested on a new burglary complaint, police disclosed last night. He was seized Thursday night near the home of H. G. Lassen, 8012 Evans av., from which a watch and 75 cents in nickels were stolen. Detectives said they found Lassen's watch and 15 nickels in Blackwell's pocket.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 3—Illinois' Birthday

ON Dec. 3, 1818, congress admitted Illinois to the Union "on an equal footing with the original states in all respects."

This ended a long and complicated colonial history in which Illinois has been ruled in turn by France, by England, by Virginia, and by the United States. A large part of the future state, which had been first explored by the French in the late 17th century, became the 7th civil and military district of the French province of Louisiana in 1721. In 1763, when France lost virtually all of her North American empire, Illinois passed to the British. In 1774, it became part of the British province of Quebec.

The George Rogers Clark expedition, sponsored by Patrick Henry, governor of Virginia, captured British posts in the Illinois country in the Revolutionary war. In 1778, Virginia organized the territory north of the Ohio river into the county of Illinois.

Other eastern states claimed part of these western lands. However, they eventually relinquished their claims and in 1787 the federal government organized the area into the Northwest Territory. England had surrendered her claims in the treaty that ended the Revolutionary war.

In 1801, the Illinois country became part of the territory of Indiana. Eight years later, the territory of Illinois was organized. Its vast area included the present states of Illinois and Wisconsin.

Illinois proper, however, extended only as far north as the southern curve of Lake Michigan; when the issue of admission to the Union arose, the proposal was made that the northern boundary should be moved up to latitude 42 degrees 30 minutes to give the future state a frontage on the lake. This proposal was accepted. Otherwise, Chicago would now be a Wisconsin city.

BRITISH PUBLIC KEPT IN DARK ON U. S. SEA FLIGHTS

'Why Advertise Them?' Is Press Viewpoint

Will Raise Fare $100

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—Pan American World Airways said tonight it had made an offer to the British government to restore its pre-war trans-Atlantic one-way fare of $375—$100 more than its current rate—if the line could be assured "a fair share of American flag frequencies." Pan American said in London Friday that the British government had ordered reduction of its flights from five to two round trips a week "in retaliation for the low rates established" by the line. A fare of $375 will be nearly $200 less than the rate now charged by the competing American Airlines System, Pan American said, adding the company felt reluctantly compelled to advise the British government of its willingness to raise the tariff.

BY WARD WALKER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 2—The international turmoil resulting from England's action in cutting Pan-American Airways flights into England to two a week has finally cracked the icy silence which British newspapers have maintained regarding American trans-Atlantic flights.

While Pan-American and American Airlines were making history with new flights over the Atlantic, shortening the distance between the United States and Europe to a matter of hours, London papers printed virtually nothing about the flights. Only when THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE obtained the flight curtailment story, later followed by British official action, and wire services carried stories from America about the Anglo-American loan being in danger, did the British press abandon its head-in-the-sand policy.

"The British public knows nothing of your epic flights," a London journalist told the Tribune correspondent after the initial Chicago-London flight. "It is no accident our papers do not mention America's progress in world airways. Why should we advertise that you are so far ahead of us?"

Call Fare "Uneconomic"

Even when the story broke in the United States, London papers garbled the story. One had American Airlines also cut down on flights. All gave as the reason for the action that Pan-American had refused to abide by the fare set at the last international air conference in Chicago.

London papers state flatly that Pan-American's rate is uneconomic and would require heavy subsidization. All operations of the British Overseas Airways are fully subsidized, since this is owned by the government.

Cite FDR-Churchill Pact

The papers here made much of the Churchill-Roosevelt agreement at the start of the war that England make only warcraft while America would make the cargo type too—then work out a method after the war for protecting British air interests.

The newspapers hint that there is something unsporting about Pan-American's step, ignoring the fact that England has had ship traffic sewed up for years without America crying "cheat."

One paper pointed out that Pan-America's fare roughly is equal to British first-class steamer fare across the Atlantic. The consensus here is that powerful British steamship interests are vitally concerned with the government's move.

The British today tested two planes they will manufacture as a bid for a share in the world's air traffic—one, a Bristol Wayfarer, worked satisfactorily; the other, a Handley Page Hermes, built for trans-Atlantic flying, crashed, killing the manufacturer's chief test pilot and chief technician, five minutes after the take-off.

Starts Lisbon Service

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 2 (AP)—The first Pan American World Airways land plane set down on the Lisbon air field today, inaugurating a new twice weekly air service between New York and Lisbon by way of Ireland. The plane will take off for Ireland tomorrow.

END LAW MAKING BY U. S. BUREAUS, ATTORNEY URGES

Plea to House Group Cites OPA Rulings

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2—A plea for an end to legislation by federal bureaus and courts is contained in a brief filed today with the house labor committee by Zach Lamar Cobb, a Los Angeles, Cal., attorney representing lumber interests.

The plea was occasioned by an appeal by the wage and hour administration of a federal court ruling in Oregon denying the administration's attempt to obtain travel pay to and from logging camps to cutting fields for lumberjacks.

The federal court denied the travel pay on the ground the lumber industry does not present the simple problem of passage from entrance to entrance in a mine but involves a wide range of distances from forest to mill and a wide variety of conveyances.

OPA Rulings Cited

Cobb argued that private enterprise cannot survive continued regimentation. He cited two instances of what he described as capricious regimentation by the OPA.

The first was the placing of a ceiling price on milk below the cost of production in the Los Angeles area, which he said was done to force the private dairy industry, thru a "squeeze," to come under a system of food price subsidies.

The second was the fixing of beef prices by zones. In the zoning system, Cobb said, the OPA placed El Paso, Tex., in the corn belt, altho "neither God nor man had made corn grow" in that area. He said the effect of the zoning was to put a long established and successful El Paso packing house out of business, with the result that the army at Fort Bliss had to obtain beef from far away Seattle at substantially higher prices.

Congress Precedent Told

The brief said congress recently established a precedent for setting aside legislation by bureaus and courts. He recalled recent legislation setting aside a decision by the bureau of internal revenue and a court finding in the case of oil companies denying deductions for intangible costs of drilling and development. Congress felt its laws had been disregarded by the bureau and a federal Circuit court and adopted a resolution which set aside the court decision.

"In all parts of the country men of good will, and good sense, irrespective of party, are uniting to preserve the American system of private enterprise," the brief said.

TRUMAN IS BACK AFTER CRUISE ON HIS NEW YACHT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2 (AP)—President Truman returned to the White House at 4:40 p. m. today after a cruise with friends on the Potomac river aboard the new Presidential yacht Williamsburg.

The President and members of the "Hardrock club," which includes newspaper men and others who accompanied him on his Vice Presidential campaign last fall, boarded the yacht upon the President's arrival in Washington last night from Philadelphia, Pa., where he attended the Army-Navy football game.

It was the President's first use of his new yacht, which replaced the old Potomac.

OUTLAW TERROR BESTED IN BOUT WITH A TRUCK

Matt Kimes Is Nabbed in Arkansas Hospital

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 2 [Special]—A stocky, middle aged man who was run down by a truck on a North Little Rock street last night was identified in the Baptist state hospital here today as the notorious Matthew Kimes, bank robber and killer, who headed a gang of outlaws which terrorized the southwest in the '20s.

Matthew Kimes

Kimes, 39, has been sought thruout the southwest by the federal bureau of investigation and peace officers of several states since Sept. 5 when he assertedly engineered the $17,000 robbery of a Morton, Tex., bank while on a "leave of absence" from the Oklahoma state prison.

The outlaw was carrying a pistol and had $1,640 in his clothes when he was brought to the hospital after the truck accident. He suffered a broken leg and head and back injuries.

They Become Suspicious

At the hospital he gave his name as Leo A. Woods of Miami, Okla., and produced credentials which J. H. Anderson, North Little Rock police chief, said had been stolen from the real Woods Nov. 16.

Hospital authorities first became suspicious of the supposed Woods when he asked them not to notify relatives of his accident, Anderson said.

Anderson said Kimes admitted his identity after police quizzed him for an hour and confronted him with proof that the Woods credentials were stolen. Kimes has refused to answer questions about the Texas bank robbery, the chief said.

Dean Morley, special agent for the FBI, said a fugitive complaint will be filed tomorrow accusing Kimes of participating in the bank holdup and that he will be removed to Texas for trial as soon as his condition permits.

Served 18 Years

Kimes had served 18 years of two life sentences for murder when he persuaded the Oklahoma prison and parole board to give him a six month leave three months ago so he could gather evidence to support a petition for a pardon.

Ease with which the outlaw has been able in the past to obtain vacations from the penitentiary has provoked widespread criticism.

The Kimes gang became nationally known in 1925, 1926, and 1927 when Matt, the "kid outlaw," led a group of quick shooting bandits on a series of bank robberies and other depredations in Oklahoma, Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, and Texas.

In November, 1926, when Kimes was jailed at Salisaw, Okla., on charges of killing a deputy sheriff, six of his pals raided the jail and set him free.

Kimes was convicted in 1927 of slaying Sheriff Perry Choculate in a Sequoya county, Okla., bank robbery and of killing Police Chief W. J. McAnnally during a triple bank holdup at Beggs, Okla.

WOMAN FOUND IN STREET WITH HEAD CUT; DIES

Miss Betty Fry, 28, of 4647 Magnolia av., died in County hospital yesterday after she was found lying unconscious in a gangway in the rear of 1025 Wilson av. Her forehead was cut and she lay in a pool of rain water. Mrs. Kitty Voss, 1025 Wilson av., who found her, told police she investigated after she heard some one scream at 5 a. m. Physicians diagnosed her condition as due to alcoholism. Detectives believed she suffered the forehead injury in a fall. They said Miss Fry had been arrested previously on disorderly conduct charges.

CHURCH JOURNAL BLASTS BISHOP'S BAN ON ELLIOTT

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Dec. 2 (AP)—The Chronicle, a monthly magazine of the Protestant Episcopal church, said today that Bishop William T. Manning seemed to have "failed to recognize the limitations of his constitutional authority" when he said Elliott Roosevelt, who has been divorced twice, was not eligible to serve as a vestryman in the family church in Hyde Park.

"Some of the most loyal and devoted parishoners of many parishes have been divorced and remarried," said the magazine in advance proofs of an editorial to appear in Wednesday's issue.

"Dr. Manning seems to have created for himself in our church an awkward situation. He seems to have unduly failed to recognize the limitations of his constitutional authority [and] to have handled a delicate situation without due consideration for all concerned."

Bishop Manning, after hearing the editorial's contents read over the telephone, said "I do not wish to comment."

Roosevelt, second son of the late President, was elected vestryman of St. James church on Nov. 13. Ten days later Dr. Manning, the Episcopal bishop of New York, declared Roosevelt was "not in good standing in the church and therefore is not eligible for the office."

Let's Look at the Wage Record

Leaders of the UAW-CIO have never accused General Motors of paying low wages.

They have not because they could not. GM hourly wage rates are substantially higher than the average for industry in general.

Under these circumstances the wage demands of UAW leaders appear fantastic.

Without offering anything in return, they demand a wage jump that would add 30% to the pay of workers already among the highest paid in the country.

In 1941, the last peacetime year, the average GM factory worker received a wage that put his income among the top one-third of all incomes in the United States—not just labor incomes but all incomes.

The average GM factory worker can buy much more food, clothing and other necessities—as well as more of the comforts of life—than the average industrial worker can.

General Motors has always paid high wages to its employes. It always expects to.

DOCTORS MAP ALTERNATIVE TO TRUMAN'S PLAN

Medical Unit Advocates Private Health Care

Presidents of 25 state medical societies met in the Continental hotel yesterday and drew up an alternative to President Truman's program for medical care for all the people at government expense.

In place of a government supervised plan supported by taxes, the physicians, in a set of resolutions, advocated voluntary nonprofit health insurance programs for each state. Forty-seven such plans are in operation now in 25 states, it was said, and they have proved that the subscriber can be furnished the services of a physician of his choice, hospitalization, surgical care, and medicines for 60 cents a month.

Propose Health Secretary

The resolutions also proposed a secretary of public health and medical welfare as a new member of the President's cabinet. The secretary would be a practicing physician and would have jurisdiction over every federal agency related to health. The government's part in the health of the citizens would be to encourage research and to provide loans or guarantee loans for hospitals and medical schools.

"The function of government, federal and state, should be to encourage and assist rather than to compete with reputable voluntary health insurance programs," the resolutions stated.

President Truman's program was promoted at the meeting by A. J. Altmeyer, chairman of the social security board, who said: "The government needs the help of the medical profession in achieving this objective and, in my opinion, the medical profession also needs the help of the government."

National Basis Urged

The voluntary health plan was recommended to the American Medical association house of delegates, which will be in session today in the Palmer House. Resolutions asked the A. M. A. delegates to "correlate the various voluntary state and local programs in order to develop a group health care plan on a national basis, with uniform principles, rates, and reciprocity between all, for the benefit of subscribers located in all parts of the country."

Another resolution approved a national health congress, "representative of the medical, dental, hospital, nursing, pharmaceutical and allied professions" to advance the organization of voluntary plans.

STATE HOSPITAL PATIENT DIES; CAUSE UNKNOWN

Michael Diasparra, 67, of 322 Highwood av., Highwood, who died Saturday in the Illinois State hospital in Elgin, where he was a patient, came to his death as the result of internal injuries caused by three rib fractures which he suffered in an unknown manner, a coroner's jury found at the inquest held yesterday.

The autopsy which disclosed the fractured ribs had been demanded by members of Diasparra's family, who said he had told them he was beaten by an attendant. Diasparra was unable to identify the attendant before he died, hospital authorities said. They said he frequently had made unfounded charges against attendants.

He had been an occasional patient at the hospital since 1923.

SCIENCE TO USE CYCLOTRON IN CANCER CASES

Berkeley, Cal., Dec. 2 (AP)—The cyclotron which produced the first plutonium for atomic bomb research is being reconverted to peace time uses and will tackle cancer and other medical problems with much greater prospects of success than before Pearl harbor, Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence announced today.

"We are about to point the way toward the cure of certain kinds of cancer," Lawrence told newsmen, who were permitted to see the famous atom smasher for the first time since 1941. "That does not mean we will be able to cure all kinds of malignancy, but we hope that in a few years we can show significant percentages of success in the treatment of some varieties."

Angels Wanted! And 'Heaven' Can't Wait in Passavant Drive

BY JUDITH CASS

A CHANCE to be an angel is offered by the woman's board of Passavant hospital in gaily illustrated pink and blue invitations which friends of the hospital will receive today. Paired together, floating on clouds, are haloed cherubim illustrating a brief legend: "No opera, no skating, no concert, no ballet, no top hat, no tails—but just a chance to be an ANGEL."

The sketches refer to four successful hospital benefit parties of the past, a Russian ballet performance in 1934, a Toscanini concert in 1939, a performance of "Salome" in 1940, and an ice skating benefit in 1941, and the implication is that by doing nothing this year—beyond writing a check—loyal supporters will be admitted to "Passavant charity heaven." Any donation [deductible from personal income taxes this year] will be acceptable.

Five dollars will provide one day's hospital ward care; $100 will provide maternity ward care and special nursing for a premature infant; $1,000 will go toward new equipment for the enlarged X-ray department, and $1,800 will endow a free ward bed for 12 months, marked by the donor's plaque.

At a luncheon meeting Saturday in the Arts club Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, president of the board, was receiving congratulations for the work she and Mr. Reid did in designing the unusual invitations. In fact, all of the board members had something to be congratulated upon in the way of artistry, for each is busy with some handwork specialty which will go on sale in a new shop to be opened in the hospital lobby next spring.

Mrs. Howard Fenton's bags, Mrs. Gardiner B. Van Ness' kittens, Mrs. James R. Offield's knit goods, and Mrs. Byron Harvey Jr.'s and Mrs. Loyal Davis' dolls are some of the attractive items which will be sold in one-half of the shop. Sodas and sandwiches will be dispensed in the other half. Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, Mrs. William H. Bush, and Mrs. Alden Swift are in charge of the shop, and Mrs. James Ward Thorne will dress its windows.

Here and There

Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Reid were being congratulated on other matters, too, for the former's talented daughter, Miss Nancy Davis, is to open with Mary Martin in a Chinese classic, "The Lute Song," Dec. 13 in New Haven, Conn. The play ran 500 years in China, Miss Martin told Mrs. Davis, so she expects a successful run here. Dr. and Mrs. Davis will go east for the opening, and expect their daughter at home for Christmas, as there will be no performance that night.

The Reids just returned from Longmeadow, Mass., where they went to attend the christening of their new grandson, the 11 months old boy Mr. and Mrs. Russell Foster [Mary Elizabeth Reid] adopted from the Cradle. The baby was named Jeffery, after Mrs. Harris Fahnestock [Frances Jeffery], an old friend of Mrs. Foster. The Fosters have a 6 year old daughter, Faith.

Mrs. Fenton is looking forward to a visit in January from her daughter, Mrs. William B. Cudahy, and her family, who have settled in Pebble Beach, Cal., following Mr. Cudahy's discharge from the navy. Also at the luncheon were Mrs. Vaughan Spalding, who left yesterday to spend the winter in the Spaldings' new Palm Beach home; Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr., Mrs. Alanson Donald, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Edward B. Smith, who is settling in a new home in Lake Forest after living in Washington, D. C., for several years; and Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, all of whom work actively in the hospital as well as at raising money for the institution. The board is proud of the fact that the hospital stands fourth in amount of free care given by hospitals in the city, according to number of beds available.

On the Calendar

After regretfully assuming that their shining light, Louis C. Sudler, would not be caroling with them this year because of his grand opera debut, members of the Great Lakes Dredge and Philharmonic society happily are welcoming him again within their ranks. Mr. Sudler, an early member of the group, will not be rehearsing with the singers tonight or next Monday, as he is preparing for a concert he will give Thursday afternoon of next week in the Fortnightly club. However, he will be with the carolers the Sunday before Christmas when they start on their traditional tour north in Astor st. and south in State pkwy. Children are invited to hear the songs at the start of the tour in front of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Rogers' house in Scott st. The men and their wives will end the evening with a buffet supper and more songs in the Saddle and Cycle club.

Laird Bell will speak on "Policy Over Berlin" at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at 12:15 p. m. next Monday in the ballroom of the La Salle hotel. Mr. Bell just returned from Germany, having completed his government service of six months. He was deputy director of the economic division of the office of military government, and is a past president of the council.

Mrs. Jacob Baur will entertain at tea at home this afternoon for the debutantes, post-debs, and young marrieds who will assist at a benefit "Victory Derby" dinner-dance the woman's board of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society will give next Saturday in the Drake hotel.

Plans for a novel benefit, to take place in the near future, will be discussed by the board of the Woman's Symphony orchestra at a luncheon which Mrs. William McGibbon will give today in the Homestead in Evanston. Rudolf Kirkusny, Czech pianist, will be the soloist at the symphony's next concert, Dec. 14, in Orchestra Hall.

The present governing board of the Kenilworth center of the Infant Welfare society will hold its final meeting today in the home of Mrs. Peter D. Ridenour II. in E. Elm st.

Abbey Simon's in Top Rank of Young Pianists

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

Good pianists are so numerous this season that when a new one who is better than good comes along, the critic's vocabulary is apt to falter. Such a one is Abbey Simon, young easterner, winner of several major awards, who made his Chicago debut with outstanding success in Kimball hall yesterday afternoon.

Upon sober reflection Mr. Simon may be placed in the front rank of the younger generation of pianists. He is, as all concert aspirants must be today, a virtuoso; and he is much more, being a remarkably versatile musician on the friendliest terms with all schools and styles of music.

He can play such unaccustomed and ordinarily unrewarding concert fare as Beethoven's seven Bagatelles, opus 33, with the meticulous sobriety of a Schnabel. He can undertake the formidable feat of performing both books of the Paganini-Brahms Variations, and leave the auditor not only admiring a dauntless but never overworked technical display, but basking in the rich Brahmsian warmth which underlies the glittering surface.

This sort of ability does not always spell good Chopin, but when that composer's turn came, Mr. Simon dashed off four sparkling etudes, and what is more difficult, made the F-sharp minor nocturne sing with approved morbid lushness, and in encores captured the witty caprice of two mazurkas.

And his Ravel, the "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales" and "Alborado del Gracioso," an encore, might have been the work of a specialist. Casadesus and Gieseking have caught the shimmering substance of this music in like manner—and very few others. To close his regular program Mr. Simon selected Godowsky's "improvement" of Albeniz's "Triana," and actually made it sound like that, with the pianist's ten fingers working like a hopped-up centipede in a marathon race.

In the evening busy Kimball hall was tenanted by Virginia Stuart, a soprano with some promising virtues and some curable faults. Her greatest handicap is a double system of voice production; one for the upper register, which produces free, dramatically charged high tones, another for the middle range, resulting in tonal hollowness and unsteadiness. When the vocal line lay high, as in Elizabeth's Prayer from "Tannhauser" and "Im Herbst" by Robert Franz, Miss Stuart was on secure ground, and her sound natural musical instincts led her to intelligent interpretations. In a quieter mood, Liszt's "O quand je dors" had decided merits. Wagner's "Traume" was given rather a novel turn in a conception more dramatic than ecstatic, tho arguing well for the singer's projective powers. "Vissi d'arte" from "Tosca" brought Miss Stuart's two methods of production into open conflict and should point to her the error of her ways. The accompaniments of Ethel Gaumer were thoroly professional.

Thru the Looking Glass

This Christmas, as you can well appreciate, much of the merchandise—or the lack of it—reflects at least the hangover of the acute shortages in many fields with which manufacturers were handicapped during the war. You must remember that the things you buy now were planned and manufactured months ago, long before even the most astute business man suspected the development of an atomic bomb that would wind up hostilities in a hurry.

You find, for instance, that there are few fitted cases this year, and none of the gorgeous ones of real leather with elegant appointments that were de luxe gifts of peace time. If a fitted case is what you want you'll have to shop for it, and if you take a tip from us you won't look at it and decide to drop back next week for a final decision. Some more decisive shopper will have nabbed it.

Among the nicest of the handful of cases on the market this year is the one shown in today's picture. It's a little travel case, in good quality of leatherette, with a washable lining and a good mirror in the top. And if you buy it you won't be buying just a nice looking bag; you'll be buying a raft of excellent beauty preparations, among them a fine cleansing cream, a dry skin cream, several good skin lotions of various kind and purpose, make-up cream, face powder, lipstick, mascara, and cream rouge. It's a portable dressing table, divine for the woman who travels or the girl who shuttles back and forth to school on week-ends. It also offers space for cleansing tissues, comb, hairpins, and the odds and ends of paraphernalia peculiar to her own needs that every woman totes.

Aid Is Sought for 3 Elderly, Needy Women

[Sally Joy Brown activities are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

A north side agency is interested in assisting Mrs. G., 80 years old, who has no family, is living alone, and is supported by a small soldiers' widows' pension. She sews well and would like to be able to mend her clothing and remodel the few things that have been given her, but finds it an almost impossible task without a sewing machine. We hope that a machine can be found for her, for in her case, sewing would serve a double purpose—enabling her to keep herself presentably clothed and keeping her busily engaged in her favorite pursuit, thus preventing loneliness. She is also greatly in need of a warm winter coat size 42.

Another elderly, lone woman, Miss O., who lives on the west side, is convalescing from a major operation, and is faced with the problem of keeping her own living quarters clean and in order. Wielding a broom is too strenuous a task in her present weakened condition, and she has asked our aid in obtaining a carpet sweeper to facilitate her work. The name and address will be supplied upon request.

Can any one supply a small radio for Mrs. M., 71 years old, widowed and bereft of family? She is suffering from a heart ailment and an arthritic condition, and is living alone in a small light housekeeping room, dependent upon the old age pension for her sustenance. Her periodic visits to the clinic and her little radio marked her chief contacts with the outside world until the radio refused to work. Parts are not obtainable.

Russian Cossacks and Danish Victor Borge Set Up International Sounds of a Sunday

RUSSIANS and a Dane set up cross-town currents in entertainment yesterday as the Don Cossack chorus sang solidly under Serge Jaroff's direction at Orchestra hall, while Victor Borge expanded what no doubt is a droll night club act into an attenuated afternoon at the Civic Opera house. Of the two I preferred the Russians, having done my bit for Denmark the night before when Lauritz Melchior stopped over between the movies and the Metropolitan, with plans for an Easter concert for soldiers in the stadium the Nazis built at Nuernberg.

No matter how vividly you remember their worth, the impact of the Cossacks always comes with a fresh shock of surprise. Altho they can pour a very pousse café of tone in layers from the voluminous depths of Russian basses to the delicate fluting of fabulous falsetto, they also can jolt you right out of a Sunday daydream by their barbaric brilliance of stentorian song.

Their aftermath of Russian folk songs was probably just as gay as ever yesterday, but having two places to go I chose the first half of the concert because it is such a pleasure to hear this choir sing the imposing music of the Russian liturgy. It was in the Kastalsky arrangement of the "Cherubim Hymn" that Mr. Jaroff manipulated those intoxicating layers of floating tone. After that, the Tschaikowsky medley was too much to take, so I departed.

Even so, I arrived at Mr. Borge too late. Some people were so amused at the first part of his show that they scurried out at intermission to buy tickets for his Dec. 16 return. Not having seen that half, I can't tell you why. When I got there Mr. Borge was eating cookies, chatting with his audience and playing flourishes on the piano, stopping up his ears with his fingers when his 30 piece orchestra [well, 23, if you want to be that way about it] answered in kind. And he had mild fun with applause, acknowledged first by the tuba player, then by the stagehands, and at last by the star himself.

Now I am willing to concede that I missed the best of the show and that Mr. Borge as a humorist is a reasonably droll fellow even when he runs out of material. But I could not discover that his piano is to be taken more seriously than, say, the music making of Olsen and Johnson or Jack Benny, who know when to quit. Except that Mr. Borge's biography says he studied with Egon Petri, I would suspect that he plays by not too dependable ear. But at least he has one unique combination in that his style is both florid and economical. Altho he kept adding his own flourishes to other men's music, he left out enough Grieg and Chopin notes to compose a frugal concerto.

Show Changes

"Spring in Brazil" has closed for repairs and "The Passing Show" will take its Erlanger booking Jan. 7, with Ethel Waters joining Willie Howard in the cast. The Great Northern's holiday booking will be announced soon. Meanwhile, "Dark of the Moon" will open at the Blackstone Jan. 21.

Dowling Grounded

Eddie Dowling won't be flying out for the Studebaker opening of "St. Lazare's Pharmacy," after all. He wires, "I will not be able to see it open as La Belle Taylor [Laurette] threatens not to go on if I miss a show." Mr. Dowling had intended to fly here Sunday, the 23d, and get back to New York in time for "The Glass Menagerie" Monday night.

Yule Shopping Utopia, and It's for Men Only

BY REA SEEGER

Gone are the days when a man took his peace of mind and ignorance down into the shops and stores, around Christmas, to select gifts for the women in his life. Gone also are the glassy eyed men, who, after a couple of hours of wrestling with filled elevators, escalators, assorted small toddlers, and brisk — sometimes brusque — ladies behind the counters, slunk back to the office, embittered for life. For these days such men are pampered, fed, and entertained in specially stocked shops, reserved for "men only."

Such shops are anything but the masculine wastes they sound. One newly opened shop, for example, has three attractive mannequins on duty all day long to model anything and everything that's for sale. Then, to make things even more clubby, gentlemen shoppers are regaled with coffee, snacks, and cigarets—all on the house. If this isn't downright coddling, ask one of the old timers who still has vivid memories of battling mixed crowds, without quarter asked by either men or women. Any and every man is welcome, with or without lists, in the new shop. It is staffed with experts, good looking, smart gals, who know all there is to know about feminine sizes, fashions, colors, and clothes.

The assortments are most complete, from delicate dainty lingerie, to scarfs, slippers, games, gloves, and jewelry. Even cosmetics and perfumes are displayed. Printed high on one wall space is a chart, concerning sizes, weights, and measurements of the average and not so average woman, from 3 years to 83. Check this table of measurements with what you know about the women on your list and you'll be hailed Christmas morning as super-man.

Gifts, after selection, are wrapped and tied with what we consider the best and swankiest paper ever devised for the purpose. Nothing sniffy or sissy, it's stunning paper resembling beige tanned ostrich skin, just like the expensive real stuff that makes your pet wallet or tobacco case. Step right in, gentlemen, it's all yours.

For further information, call Rea Seeger, Superior 0800.

Civic Club Book Talk

The Half Century Civic club will hear Miss Laura Thornton in a book talk at 1 p. m. Wednesday in the Morrison hotel.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 2—Humphrey Bogart will have as his next "The Dealer's Name Was George." The story, an original by Ketti Frings, is laid in New Orleans, and Bogey will have the role of a faro dealer in a gambling joint. Atmosphere will be similar to "Casablanca." As yet no leading lady has been set, but due to conflicting schedules, it's hardly likely that Lauren Bacall will get the part. Arnold Albert will produce. . . . "The Perfect Marriage," stymied for lack of a director [as which perfect marriage isn't], will start shooting, after all, this month. Hal Wallis has borrowed Lewis Allen from Paramount to meg the David Niven-Loretta Young co-starrer. . . . Renie Riano has rrived to play comedy maid to Myrna Loy and Don Ameche in "A Genius in the Family." There'll have to be fast shooting on her scenes at Universal, because she's due back in New York for rehearsals on "Love in the Snow." Well, California should warm her up for that part. . . . Barbara Stanwyck not only will have technicolor, but a chance to sing in "California." She does three numbers, including "Yips," and for one will have a choral background of three hundred singers.

Kid Stuff—But This Isn't Kidding!

Butch Jenkins, that 8 year old wonder boy, gets his first real vacation in three years before he starts "Louis, My Brother Who Speaks to Horses" in April. But do you know where he'll spend his holiday? In school. O, well, such is the price of fame. . . . Andy Devine [mayor of Van Nuys] and Arthur Treacher [mayor of Sherman Oaks] are promoting a 70 acre children's park for their districts. It'll also stand as a memorial to San Fernando valley soldiers who fell in this war. . . . Lou Costello will receive the Knights of Pythias' annual award for his outstanding aid to underprivileged children. Chief among his works is the Lou Costello Jr. Youth Foundation, which, with Bud Abbott, he established as a memorial to his little son who was drowned. The award will be made in Lou's home town, Paterson, N. J. . . . That battle between two agencies over Peter Lawford looks like it's headed for the courts.

Horse Play on Hollywood's Film Track

Tom Breneman, not satisfied with getting himself in the movies, has landed roles for two of his horses in "Black Beauty." His young colt will play "Beauty" as a youngster, and a mare of his will play the part of "Duchess," the mother. [The hoss's mamma, of course.] . . . Speaking of Tom, when he was lunching with Bonita Granville and Andy Russell, he mentioned he'd have to go see "Breakfast in Hollywood." "They told me at the studio you'd already seen it three times," said Bonita. "Those times," explained Tom, "I went to see myself. Next time I'll go to see you." Well, Tom, don't blink your eyes or you miss my part. . . . Jennifer Holt, Jack's talented daughter, gets the feminine lead in "Moon Over Montana." Last time I heard of that moon it was over Miami. . . . Lou Nova, who's always wanted to be an actor, gets a chance in Monogram's "Joe Palooka—Champion," taken from the popular comic strip. Incidentally with Max Baer and Joe Louis also playing in that picture, it's gonna have plenty of heavies—but heavies.

Double Talk of Stage and Screen

The Redpath Lyceum bureau has scheduled Maurice Evans, Guthrie McClintic and Margaret Webster for lecture tours to tell about the stage; and they're dickering with Director William Keighley to go on, too, and talk about movies. Keighley once taught a course in movie directing at the University of Southern California. . . . Otto Brower, who's doing the background shooting for "The City of Flowers" in Costa Rica, writes that he's seen a lot of people there including our ambassador and the president of Chile, but got the biggest thrill out of seeing Bill Santoro, former prop man at 20th, who's now in the navy. . . . Fritz Lang goes to New York on a quest for stories. While there, he'll preview "Scarlet Street" for the police department. . . . Joan Harrison and Jonathan Latimer, preparing "Nocturne" at R. K. O., requested another room for their office. When asked, "What for?" they said, "To do our pacing in."

Travelog—with Heart Interest!

Samuel Goldwyn Jr., who's just graduated from OCS, has been squiring Mary Ellin Berlin, Irving's daughter, about New York. . . . William Cotten, head of Ideal Publications, comes here for a conference with studio executives. . . . Joan Caulfield is heading east for a visit with her family in New York and a side trip to Montreal to get in some skiing. . . . Velos and Yolanda have brought their racing nags out here to have them readied for the coming season.

FOOTPRINTS

"You saw the footprints in the entrance to the old cowshed?" the superintendent asked on Headcorn's return to the station. "Yes, that's right; we covered them over with a pail after taking impressions. They're hers, they fit the pair of old shoes she left behind."

The prints had been pressed deep into soft earth. The inspector asked if it were quite firmly established that Miss Trimble had boarded the Cheltenham bus on the evening of Friday, Oct. 27, and was assured that it was.

"She was recognized by several people, including the bus conductor; but I've got him here now, you can talk to him yourself."

The conductor was most positive, having known the victim well from previous journeys. On the last journey he had not spoken to her at all, being busy loading on a pram when she got into the bus, but there was no mistaking her hat, the long black coat she almost always wore, and her walk. Yes, and she was carrying a bag. No, he hadn't personally taken her fare, the aisle being so jammed with strap-hangers. The money had been handed back to him—the exact one way Cheltenham fare. He had been knocked endways to learn she had got out at Elm Corners. It was too blinking dark by then to know just how many did alight.

The inspector knew that the two farmers and the land girl alighting at Elm Corners had been accompanied by a tallish woman in a fur collared coat and a wide brimmed hat, but only for a few yards. She had vanished, engulfed in the night. "And what about this other woman, sitting in the same seat with the victim?" he asked.

"Her? I can't tell you what she looked like nor nothing about her. Not one of our usual lot, I'd say, but there again she may have bin too and I just never got close enough to reckonise her. Ain't come forward, has she? No, if she got talking with Miss Trimble I wouldn't know. Now if you could just lay hands on her——!"

If! The Wyfforde police were still trying. No one thus far interviewed could describe Miss Trimble's chance neighbor.

Inspector Headcorn went 'round to Heath Villas to question Ada Briggs. The seamstress explained that the Misses Bolles being old patrons of hers, she hadn't wanted to offend them by taking Miss Trimble in.

"But there wasn't a crack or cranny to be had in the whole of Wyfforde. She promised me she wouldn't trouble me for very long. And then, you see, she told me her side of what happened over at Turrets."

While the tale was repeated, the inspector was casting a speculative eye over the fusty, respectable little parlor, which by police instructions had been kept under lock and key. No finger printing had yet been done.

"And you can quite see, can't you," Ada Briggs said, "why she didn't like showing her face in Cheltenham with all that mud sticking to her."

Yet, Headcorn pointed out, she had visited Cheltenham twice. Twice? The sandy eyelashes blinked with surprise. "I never knew . . . On the Tuesday she went. That was when she'd bin with me about three days. Yes, she told me, she had a talk with the vicar. O, he treated her very cold! In fact, well, it was that very evening she took the whole bottle of aspirins and lay at death's door for ever so many hours. I still say if she hadn't bin a strong woman . . . When? O, not on the Wednesday! She can't 've done! And yet," meditatively, "she did go out."

"She caught the 5 o'clock bus to Cheltenham, Mrs. Briggs. It goes earlier on Wednesday, as you know. When did you first see the weapon she had in her possession? And was it like this—or like this?"

With a frightened gasp Ada Briggs stared at the two utterly dissimilar firearms the inspector had laid on the red covered table. Without hesitation she pointed at the heavy service revolver.

"That one, sir. Like what my husband used in the last war. And it was that Wednesday evening when she come in . . . Was that why she seemed all that brightened up?"

For there had, Ada admitted, been a sudden and puzzling change. On Thursday it had been really noticeable, tho how Miss Trimble could have got so excited over the inquest on the soldier who had broken his neck on the Misses Bolles' top stair had been just another mystery.

"Did Miss Trimble intimate that she might be in peril of her life?"

"Hers! O, never."

"Was she afraid then for some one else? The revolver, you know."

"I—I really can't say. All I know is my popping in about 9 and seeing her handling this awful looking gun. Give me a turn, it did. And then, well, she laughed, 'Now,' she says to me, 'I feel quite, quite safe.'"

Safe from what? Again Ada didn't know. Headcorn turned his attention to the belongings the dead woman had left behind. Ada agreed that the pack-up must have been a helter-skelter affair. "Why, I wasn't out of the house above half an hour. Look at this good new toothbrush—and all these blouses. She musta bin in a tearing hurry to have taken her oldest and worst and left all these good things hanging behind the curtain as you see—well, I never!"

"Are you referring to this blotting pad on the table?"

"What's left of it. I had a clean top sheet, that I know. If she hadn't ripped it clean off and thrown it away!"

The house with its lovely ceilings and cold gloom filled corners was getting Avis down.

Avis unhooked her coat, and in the dusk of the coat cupboard trod on a pair of high galoshes. Quickly, impulse driven, she zipped them on her feet. She would go to Lady Barkdale's, but first she had other fish to fry—that is if the police had cleared right out of that field.

Sloshing and scrunching in the too large footwear she reached the barred gate and cast a searching eye over the green waste beyond. Deserted. A moment later, inside the green expanse, she looked left at the back windows of Turrets. Blacked out for the night. It wouldn't do to be seen. She was not at all clear of her object. Mainly, she told herself, just to fix distances, get a more precise notion of the lie of the land. She would not admit the tunnel was drawing her like a grisly magnet. She gave the middle opening a purposely wide berth, squelching straight on to the old gray outhouse on the far side where she caught her breath, staring down at an upended bucket conspicuously placed inside the door.

Her gloved fingers lifted the pail. Underneath, deeply imprinted in the moist earth, she saw the clear outlines of two feminine soles! The police had covered them over to preserve them—and taken plaster impressions first, for round the depressions were little blobs of brittle white stuff. The soles were long but pointed. Maud's shoes had rounded toes.

Whoever thought up the idea of serving grapefruit hot deserves an extra present from Santa Claus every year. Broiled grapefruit is something entirely different from chilled grapefruit and it fits into either end of the menu. Furthermore, broiled grapefruit is a perfect breakfast starter on a chilly morning.

To broil, cut grapefruit in halves and loosen the sections as usual, then sprinkle with sugar or drizzle with sirup, add a bit of butter to each half and place under the broiler until just hot and slightly brown. A cranberry sauce topping makes broiled grapefruit into party fare. Come Christmas, it's a good appetizer, better dessert, a soothing finish to a heavy meal.

Use canned or homemade strained cranberry sauce, the jellied kind. Beat ¼ cup of brown sugar or honey into a cup of the sauce, using a fork. Spread the cranberry mixture over prepared grapefruit halves (this is enough to cover four halves generously) and broil until hot and bubbly. Colorful, delicious!

It was a wonderful feeling we had, those first few days of buying meats without the red points which were such a war time headache. But many homemakers have become careless about saving waste fats now that the ration point reward no longer is needed. Fat salvage still is important, and meat drippings which aren't used in cooking should be collected in cans and turned in to meat dealers, just as before. There's a reward in pennies: Four for each pound.

Once again we can have roast ham for Christmas dinner if we want it. No points, glory be, and there's more ham available than there has been for a long time. Canned pineapple for a glaze may be a little hard to find, but it's point free. Dried apricots make a good sauce for glazing and basting ham. Oranges, pears, cranberries, grapes, and fresh pineapple are among the fruits which might be chosen to garnish a baked ham. Sugar still is scarce, but honey is a better sweetener in this instance, anyway. Any light or dark sirup will do for sweetening a fruit sauce or garnishing a ham.

Mulled cider and mulled wine are pleasant warm drinks for cold weather, especially at holiday time. Here's how to mull a sweet wine like port. To serve six, start with a pint of port. Add a tablespoon of sugar and the juice and pared thin skin (cut in strips) of half a lemon. Heat in the top of a double boiler. When hot add ⅓ cup boiling water and strain into a heated pitcher. Serve in cups with a dash of nutmeg in each. If you like the wine sweeter, a little more sugar is in order.

A party version of mulled wine combines a bottle of claret with 2 cups pineapple juice, 1 cup orange juice, and ½ cup water boiled for 5 minutes with a sliced lemon, a stick of cinnamon, a tablespoon of cloves, and ⅛ cup sugar, then strained. The combination is heated in a double boiler. Eight or nine persons can be served with this amount.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. Peter G., Decatur, Ill.—Drying blankets in cold weather is tricky business. Cold will shrink and roughen wool, heat will harden and yellow it. Manage somehow to dry them in a moderate temperature, or send them to a good laundry. I have also learned not to overwash a clean blanket, this also roughens and hardens its texture.

Helen G., Chicago—To keep a cork from working its way out of an insulated bottle, I fold a strip of waxed paper over the cork so that the ends of the paper are held securely under the cup.

Mrs. Anna B., Sandusky, O.—I found out when my children were small that a small Christmas tree was much more satisfactory than a large one. Even the little toddlers can reach most parts of a small tree and feel they are really a "help" in its trimming.

Children Like These Lovely Little Prayers

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"My little girl's grandmother, whom she adored, died suddenly in her sleep not long ago. We were all greatly shocked, and because of its suddenness were not prepared to protect Jennifer. The night after the tragedy when Jenny was saying her prayers she trembled when she came to:

'If I should die before I wake
'I pray the Lord my soul to take.'

"Have you any other ending or other prayer for little folks that leaves them quiet and peaceful before sleep?"

Another mother wrote:

"My little boy loves animals more than most. His puppy has just died in the hospital and now he cries whenever he gets to the third line of 'Now I lay me,' and won't finish it. I'd like to substitute another ending or another prayer."

I have made a collection of prayers for children [from the very youngest, up] which leaves them with a feeling of comfort and peace. A few of them are quoted below:

Now I lay me down to rest,
Angels guard my little nest.
Like the wee birds in the tree,
Heavenly Father, care for me.

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to keep.
God bless my father and mother dear,
And Heavenly Father, draw Thou near,
And bless me, too, and help me wake
A happy girl [boy],
For Jesus' sake.

Jesus, Gentle Shepherd, hear me,
Bless Thy little lamb tonight.

For mother love and father care,
For grandma and friends everywhere,
[or for brothers dear and sisters fair]
For love at home and care each day,
For guidance as we go our way,
Father in Heaven, we thank Thee.

And here are several for boys and girls a little older, and on upward thru varying ages:

Now the day is over
Night is drawing nigh,
Shadows of the evening
Steal across the sky.

Jesus, give the weary
Calm and sweet repose.
With Thy tenderest blessing
May our eyelids close.

When the morning wakens
Then may I arise,
Strong and fresh and happy
In Thy holy eyes.

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. Rose Sitkowski, 1619 S. 59th ct., Cicero.]

THE QUESTION

WHERE ASKED

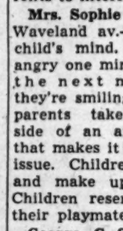
THE ANSWERS

Mary A. Di John, administrative assistant, 854 Wrightwood av.—In cases where there are possibilities that the children may be injured I think the parents should interfere. Generally, tho, if the children are only quarreling or fighting just a little bit, I think they should be left alone. They kiss and make up so easily.

Conrad Lisk, retired policeman, 4237 Ravenswood av.—When parents get into the children's arguments it causes a lot of trouble. The children fight and make up and then the parents are on the outs. When my boys were younger, I always let them fight their own battles and they got along all right.

Paul D. Buchheit, attorney, 2165 Windsor av.—Ordinarily it's not advisable for parents to get into the discussion. It's better to let children fight it out among themselves because the children get over it in a hurry but when parents start fighting it often ends in court. Just make your own child come home.

Youngie Reaume, salesman, 2461 Clark st.—If children are merely quarreling and don't strike one another, I think parents should keep out of it. Arguing sharpens wits and is good for children. It teaches them to stand on their own feet and defend whatever they think is right. It's foolish for parents to interfere.



Mrs. Sophie Glick, housewife, 712 Waveland av.—A child has only a child's mind. They're angry one minute and the next minute they're smiling. When parents take either side of an argument that makes it a major issue. Children fight and make up again. Children resent parents who take their playmate's side.

George C. Sell, real estate, 1410 Hood av.—Only if it gets to the point where one child may be seriously injured should an adult enter. Put a child on his own and he will learn to fight for himself or to avoid fights. If a parent takes a child's side, the rest of the children will gang up on the child.

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ A Q J 7 5 ♥ 4 ♦ A J 10 ♣ A Q J 7

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. Slam prospects are very bright, in fact a grand slam is in the air if partner happens to have the king of spades, the king of clubs, and the ace of hearts. It is a good idea to set about finding out more about the details of the hand. You must make a bid which partner is absolutely forbidden to pass. The only such bid [since partner is not the opener] is a jump in a new suit. It will be noted that the knowledge that partner has an ace and two kings is not sufficient to warrant a grand slam bid. To make it a good gamble one of them must be the king of spades.

Q. 2—Opponent opens with three hearts and you hold:
♠ A K Q J 9 7 ♥ 7 ♦ A Q 10 9 ♣ 6 2

What do you bid?

A.—Four spades. Gambling on partner to have so little as the king of diamonds, or even the king of clubs. If you bid only three spades partner may obtain the impression that you are merely putting up some kind of fight and may take no action with some slight values.

Q. 3—You are South, both sides vulnerable and you hold:
♠ 9 7 5 4 ♥ 9 ♦ A K 7 6 5 ♣ K Q 5

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	2 hearts	Double	?

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. Unless you know something about your partner that we don't. Assuming partner to be a reasonable citizen either East or West has committed a faux pas. With your high card holding, partner should surely score eight tricks even the trumps are banned against him. A rescue to three diamonds would border on the absurd, especially, since game is the reward for partner's fulfilled contract.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠ — ♥ A K J 10 7 4 ♦ K 6 3 ♣ A 9 5 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 diamond	1 spade	?

What do you bid?

A.—Three hearts. An immediate slam suggestion is in order with this mammoth. The alternate call of two spades, would not be the best strategy at this point in as much as the cue bid may be conveniently postponed till a later round. If it should be made at this time you would find it extremely difficult if not impossible to get across to partner the picture of this powerful heart suit.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠ A K Q J 10 9 ♥ A K 9 ♦ 5 ♣ 6 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	5 clubs	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Seven spades. Partner's diamon must be solid, not merely because he jumped to three and then rebid them but because he is slam minded with no spade support. Since the ace of clubs has been identified you should be able to visualize 13 tricks and at duplicate a bid of seven no trump is recommended.

Q. 6—East and West are vulnerable, you are South and hold:
♠ 2 ♥ A Q 9 3 ♦ 7 6 5 3 ♣ K 9 6 5

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 spade	2 diamond	?

What do you bid?

A.—Double. Your hand has a fair prospect of developing at least four tricks against the diamond contract. Partner may reasonably be expected to develop three, which spells a two trick set 500 points, more than the value of any game you might be able to make. There is the further consideration that you have no bright prospect of playing the hand yourself because it may be a decided misfit. If your answer was two hearts, how would you feel if partner's next bid were two spades, which is very probable?

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠ Q J 5 ♥ Q J 7 4 ♦ A 2 ♣ J 10 6 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 club	Double	Pass
1 heart	Pass	4 hearts	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five diamonds. So far you have promised absolutely nothing but the holding of four hearts, on the basis of which partner has undertaken to score 10 tricks. The fact that you have the queen-jack of hearts, the spade holding which surely must fit well with partner's hand, and the ace of diamonds, should make it certain that an 11 trick contract would be safe. You should make one try for slam by showing the ace of diamonds, or employing any other method that suits your fancy.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠ K Q J ♥ Q 10 9 5 2 ♦ K J 9 3 ♣ Q

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	6 hearts	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Seven hearts. In order to arrive at the proper decision you need only take up a pencil and record the possible holdings that partner might have to permit a two no trump opening followed by a leap to six hearts and it will soon become apparent that 13 tricks can be counted with the greatest of ease. Remember you have promised only one honor trick and a five card suit. Actually you have what amounts to almost three tricks in high cards. Your partner has offered to take 12 tricks if you have only one.

BEARS WIN; GIANTS UPSET EAGLES, 28 TO 21

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 2—The University of Pennsylvania wonders if its 19th century feat of 65 victories in 66 games isn't some sort of a record for intercollegiate football . . . Penn's streak began in 1894 and it won 34 straight before losing to Lafayette, 6 to 4 . . . The new s eak of 31 consecutive victories continued until late in the 1898 season y n Harvard won a 10 to 0 shutout . . . The Michigan teams of 1901-'02-'04-'05 won 55 games and tied one, the deadlock showing up in the 30th contest . . . Tennessee won 33 straight in the regular campaigns from 1937 thru 1941, but suffered two post-season defeats in this span . . . Notre Dame's teams of 1929-'30-'31 won 24 and lost 1, the defeat coming after 19 successes in a row. . . . This is Jack Dempsey's favorite Max Baer anecdote: Convinced that Maxie would be serious in his bout with Joe Louis, Dempsey agreed to be his second. . . . Jack watched Baer take his dressing room exercises and decided that maybe the clown really had turned over a new leaf. . . . He began to fear the worst, however, when, between agonizing gulps for air, Baer gasped: "Can't seem to get my breath." . . . Dempsey went thru with his bargain, tho, and after Baer had returned to his quarters after suffering a four round knockout, Dempsey shouted, "All right, so you were going to fight tonight! What happened to all that big talk?" "I couldn't fight," moaned Maxie, "I broke my hand!" . . . "Broke your hand? You didn't throw a punch. How could you break it?" . . . "The referee, Artie Donovan, stepped on it," replied Baer.

The Greater Oklahoma City novice Golden Gloves tournament has just been completed. . . . On Dec. 11 an intercity match with St. Louis is scheduled and on Dec. 18 the Oklahoma City fighters will appear in Kansas City. . . . Kansas City will return the call on Jan. 8 and Chicago's C. Y. O. team will fight in the Oklahoma capital Jan. 18. . . . Many wagers have been won and lost on the first rule of baseball. . . . No. 1 in the official code is "The ball ground must be enclosed." . . . One reason American league fans refuse to allow Mel Ott to be mentioned in the same breath with Babe Ruth as a home run slugger is that Ott is a one-park man. . . . By far the larger percentage of his drives were made in or rather out of the Polo Grounds. . . . They all looked alike to the Babe. . . . Jockey Tony Skoronski once played on the high school lightweight football team in Chicago Heights. . . . There has been some argument about the personnel of an all-time, all-star service baseball team but few will disagree with the selection of an outfield comprising Harry Heilmann, Bob Meusel, and Lefty O'Doul, who played for the San Pedro Submarine base in 1917-'18.

Because of You

Because of you I learned what life can hold;
How courage is the balm of cruel stings;
And even tho my feet be drenched in gall,
When you are near my flagging spirit wings.

O, let me drink with you this cup of life!
And if the dregs be bitter, let them be.
Each time I lift the chalice to my lips
I feel your Spartan soul's proximity.

You've shown me where both love and faith abide—
I saw a pair of mortal souls enmesh—
You schooled my mind to reach the ebbing tide,
To kiss the moon and walk thru early dew;
And tho the sharpest thorns may pierce my flesh,
I still shall pluck the rose because of you.

One Alone

Miss Emma and Miss Jennie Primising
Were always together in everything.
Two sisters they were of the olden school,
Genteel, quiet, possessed, and cool;
"Isn't it nice," the neighbors would say,
When the sisters walked out on a sunny day,
"That the two of them can be together,
Enjoying themselves this lovely fall weather?"

But November came drifting into the lives
Of these gentle souls, for however one strives
To hold his loved ones close to the heart
A day must come when they're destined to part;
Miss Jennie fell ill, she was always frail,
And gazing upon her brow so pale
The neighbors murmured, "If one had to go,
It's well it was she—Em's the strong one, you know."

But I saw Miss Emma walking today
Alone and so slowly the old streets gray.
And I thought, her anguish none will know,
For the "strong" ones must never their heartbreaks show!

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Blackhawks and the hockey form charts took a licking last night in Chicago Stadium. The Hawks, conquerors of the Maple Leafs in Toronto Saturday night by an 8 to 2 count, lost to the same Leafs, 5 to 3, before 17,713 here, tho they led 3 to 1 early in the second period.

The Chicagoans with a victory would have been only a point from first place. They wound up in a tie with Detroit for second and third places.

It seemed an easy victory was in prospect when Max Bentley scored two goals in a span of one minute and 13 seconds of the first period and Bill Mosienko, who had assisted on Max's goals was, in turn, assisted by Max, for a goal that gave the Hawks that 3 to 1 edge early in the first period.

Picture Changes Rapidly

Thereafter, Bob Davidson and Teeter Kennedy each scored to effect a 3 to 3 tie. Then in the final period the Hawks were shut out while Ernie Dickens scored the winning goal from the blue line and Syl Apps added the comfort goal.

The night's scoring started at 2:13 of the opening period with an unassisted goal by Mel Hill. The puck bounced dead out of a stackup in front of the Hawks' cage. It was just like shooting a quail on the ground but Mel didn't seem ashamed.

The Bentley brothers-Mosienko line took rapid care of the Toronto edge shortly after it took to the ice. No one dreamed there was a loss in the offing. Max Bentley, after getting the puck from Mosienko, beat Goaler Frank McCool with a slanter from 20 feet out, in 3:41, and in 4:54 Max added his second marker. In this effort Max waited in front of the nets while Brother Doug and Mosienko were battling to gain control of the puck back of the Toronto cage. When the line mates delivered the rubber to Max, he artistically fired it past McCool to give the Hawks a 2 to 1 lead.

The Procedure Is Reversed

The second period was like the first in that there were three goals in the first five minutes, none in the remaining 15 minutes. The main difference was that in the second period two goals were made by the Leafs after the Hawks had scored, the reverse of the first period sequence.

In 4:09 of the second period Mosienko, assisted by Max Bentley, in a beautiful passing maneuver around Goalie McCool's toes, scored to put the Hawks ahead, 3 to 1. Before the minute was out, however, the Leafs had scored two goals to tie the score at 3 to 3.

Then came that long one by Dickens — and sorrow set in.

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—The National Boxing association recommended today that Tippy Larkin of Garfield, N. J., fight Jimmy Doyle of Los Angeles, the winner to meet Ray Robinson of New York for the right to be designated the No. 1 challenger for the welterweight crown.

Ending its two day meeting here, the N. B. A. also voted to give Lightweight Champion Ike Williams of Trenton, N. J., until Jan. 1 to defend his crown or his title would be declared vacant.

Pvt. Therman Gibson, dark haired Detroiter who has been one of the nation's outstanding tenpin artists for several years, yesterday captured the half way lead in the preliminaries of the fifth annual All-Star National Individual Match Game Championship tournament which this morning enters its third day in the Auditorium service men's center.

Therman, who led thru last year's preliminary tests and won the $5,100 Petersen classic last winter, took command of the 12 game leadership with a 2,501. The soldier, stationed at Scott field, Ill., leveled 1,312 sticks on yesterday's opening squad.

Walter Ward Is Second

Pvt. Gibson started with 172. Then he burst loose with terrific games of 225, 223, 238, 235, and 219, giving him a 58 pin margin over Walter Ward, the cheroot gnawer from Cleveland, O.

Gibson's was one of the few opening scores to withstand the assaults of 144 of the nation's sharpest bowlers in the five year history of the tenpin sport's world series.

Ward totaled 1,250 yesterday and had 2,443 for 12 games. George Young of Detroit moved into third place with 2,436.

Ashley Has High Single Game

Marv Ashley of Los Angeles, Cal., bowled the high game of the tournament, a 279.

The tournament will move into its third total pin session this morning at 9 o'clock, and the fourth block will be bowled tomorrow. The 43 leaders will enter Wednesday's 12 game semi-finals. The low 11 men will proceed into the match play round robin opening Thursday and going thru Sunday's climax. They will be joined by the five seeded finalists—Buddy Bomar of Chicago, the defending champion; Joe Wilman of Berwyn, Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., and Joe Sinke and Paul Krumske, both Chicagoans.

Wilman led the seeded stars' special $1,000 match with 2,425. Sinke was second with 2,326, and Bomar third, with 2,321.

Bears Beat Cards, 28 to 20, in Chicago Pro Football Final

BY EDWARD PRELL

The Cards scored the first and the last two touchdowns in Comiskey park yesterday, but in between the Bears made four goal line trips for a 28 to 20 victory in cold and nuggy weather which kept the attendance to 13,925.

It was on apt ending to each team's disappointing 1945 National Football league campaign and a punster doubtless would observe that the teams started and finished the season in a fog. The Cardinals landed in a familiar spot—the western division cellar with one victory and nine defeats. The Bears were a notch ahead, possessors of a two game winning streak, after dropping seven of their first eight contests.

Perkins Scores on 38 Yard Run

After the Cards scored on the opening kick-off, the Bears rallied for the tying score. They added two in the second quarter for a 21 to 7 half time lead, built it up to 28 to 7 in the third quarter, then yielded two harmless scores in the fourth. George McAfee was confined to one touchdown, that on a 1 foot plunge. Most spectacular run was Don Perkins' 38 yard sprint for the third Bear touchdown.

Both Sid Luckman of the Bears and Paul Christman had a big day pitching the football. Luckman threw two touchdown passes, lifting his season's total to 14. He completed 9 of 13 and doubtless won the league's 1945 passing title.

Christman hurled one scoring pass. He and Leo Cantor had 16 completions in 29 tosses.

Seno Runs 37 Yards

The Cards marched and passed 76 yards after the opening kick-off for a 7 to 0 lead in 4:48. The key play was Frank Seno's 37 yard gallop thru tackle, the Mendota boy going to the Bears' 27. Ed Rucinski took a 15 yard pass from Christman with a leaping catch. Seno then drove to the 6. Cantor was stopped, but Seno cracked the right side to the 3. Then Cantor bulled over and Joe Kuharich kicked goal.

McAfee came back to the Bears' 26 with the kick-off and the North Siders used 13 plays for the tying touchdown. Luckman opened with a 27 yard pass to McAfee. Bob Margarita took a pitch for 15 to the Cards' 31. Jim Fordham, McAfee, and Margarita took turns punching at the line. Luckman lobbed a pass to George Wilson from the 5 for the score and Pete Gudauskas kicked goal for a tie at 11:33 in the period.

The Cards kept possession after the next kickoff into the second quarter, but their 52 yard advance finally was stopped and Kuharich missed a field goal attempt from the Bears' 25.

Bears Smear Cantor

When Cantor juggled a pass from center on fourth down he was unable to punt. The Bears smeared him on the Cards' 48 and soon had another touchdown. Perkins broke

A. A. Names Hamey Chief for 3 Years

Columbus, O., Dec. 2 (AP)—Getting the 44th annual convention of the National Association of Professional Leagues away to a running start, the American association today elected H. Roy Hamey of Kansas City as its president to succeed George M. Trautman.

H. R. Hamey

Trautman resigned to become vice president and general manager of the Detroit Tigers. Hamey now is president of the Kansas City Blues.

The association meeting was the first preliminary to a week of hot stove league baseball which will be climaxed by the official sessions of the minors' convention Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

International Meets Today

The International league will meet tomorrow. Tuesday the Three Eye, Ohio State, North Carolina State, Canadian-American, Pacific Coast, Sally, and Eastern leagues will hold their meetings.

The major items to come before the minors, of course, will be the resumption of operation by leagues which have been on the inactive list because of the war, a likely scrap over a proposal by the American association, International, and Pacific Coast leagues that they be placed in a new class AAA and more than 50 suggested amendments to minor league law.

Hamey Elected Unanimously

The election of Hamey as American association president was by a unanimous vote after he had been nominated by Oscar Salenger, new owner of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Hamey is a native of Valley City, Ill., and has been connected with the New York Yankee organization, owner of the Kansas City club, since 1934. He also formerly was connected with the St. Louis Cardinal organization.

He was given a 3 year contract as association president, starting Jan. 1, but the salary terms were not announced. He said the association offices would remain in Columbus indefinitely.

REDSKINS WIN; CLINCH TIE FOR EASTERN TITLE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2 (AP)—With a mighty assist by the New York Giants, the Washington Redskins moved into full possession of first place in the eastern division of the National Football league today by beating the Pittsburgh Steelers, 24 to 0, before 34,788.

While the Redskins were coasting home, the Giants' surprising victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in New York assured Washington of no worse than a tie for the Eastern championship. The Giants will meet the Redskins here next Sunday in the final scheduled round of play.

A victory over the Giants would clinch the flag for the Redskins but another triumph by the New Yorkers would throw Philadelphia and Washington into a playoff game, provided the Eagles beat the Boston Yanks in their last game.

Bagarus Leads Attack

Slender Steve Bagarus returned to his earlier touchdown making form as the Redskins pushed the Steelers aside in none too impressive fashion.

The former Notre Dame star scored two touchdowns, the first on a 70 yard play and the other for 31 yards after receiving Sammy Baugh's tosses into the flat.

Bagarus' second touchdown capped the Redskins' most convincing surge of the day, in the fourth period. Baugh faked a kick from behind his own goal line and passed to Cecil Hare, who ran 65 yards. Bagarus took Baugh's next pass and zigzagged thru tacklers as he had on his first period opening score.

Doug Turley went over for the Redskins' other touchdown in the second period, taking a nine yard pass from Baugh after Frank Akins' running had covered much of the distance on a 61 yard march.

Joe Aguirre kicked a 26 yard field goal in the third quarter.

Steelers Threaten Often

Headed by Bill Dudley, the Steelers gave the Redskins' defense a good workout, spending a big part of the afternoon in front of Washington's goal posts, but the Steelers lacked the finesse to score.

They did go over the goal line once on a three yard plunge by Dudley in the second period, but the play was called back on a backfield in motion penalty.

And well along in the final period, Dudley led the Steelers to the 1 foot line by making 46 yards on

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—Trailing by 21 points early in the third quarter, the New York Giants scored three quick touchdowns to tie the score and then punched across another late in the last period here today to upset the Philadelphia Eagles, 28 to 21, and all but end their bid for the eastern division title in the National Football league.

The lowly Giants astonished a partisan crowd of 45,372 with a fine second half passing exhibition.

The Eagles had scored a touchdown in each of the first two periods and Steve Van Buren had run back the opening kick-off of the second half 98 yards for a score before the Giants went to work, with the passing combination of Arnie Herber and Frank Liebel clicking for three touchdowns within eight minutes.

Livingston Intercepts Pass

Midway in the final quarter Howie Livingston intercepted an Eagle pass on the Giant 35 and ran it back to midfield to start the march for the final New York touchdown. With Herber pitching to Liebel and George Franck, and with a few short ground gains and a five yard penalty against the Eagles aiding the cause, the Giants advanced to the 5 from where Herber passed to Sam Fox in the end zone for the score.

The Eagles came back with a rousing drive after taking the next kick-off, with Tommy Thompson throwing strikes and Ben Kish making a 23 yard gain along the ground, but the offense folded and the Giants took the ball on downs on their 4 just before the final gun.

Eagles Go All the Way.

The Eagles took the opening kick-off and scored without losing the ball. With a 33 yard run by Van Buren the major factor, they marched to the 5, from where Van Buren shot over for the score.

Balked once in the second quarter when the Giants took the ball on downs on their 4, the Eagles came back with a drive from the Giant 45, Van Buren again contributing a yard-eating run from the 22 to the 3, and then driving over.

Van Buren's touchdown run on the opening kick-off in the second half oddly was the spark that flamed the Giant offense. Jack Doolan returned the Eagle kick-off to midfield, running plays carried the ball to the 38 and then Herber pitched to Liebel for the score.

Game Ends in Confusion

A recovered Eagle fumble on the Giant 49 started the Giants moving shortly after the next kick-off, and this time Herber pitched to Liebel for a 41 yard touchdown play.

The third Giant touchdown of the period practically followed the script of the first two. With the ball on the Giant 45, Herber passed down the left side of the field and Liebel took it practically out of the hands of Van Buren on the Eagle 35 and kept on going.

The game ended in a note of confusion. Just before the end John Weiss and Kish engaged in fisticuffs, with Weiss leaving the game. As the final gun sounded there was a brief flurry of fistic action under the goal posts. Statistics:

LIONS ROLL OVER PACKERS, 14-3; FINISH SECOND

Detroit Takes to Air for Upset Victory

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 2 (AP).—The Detroit Lions went into the air to set up two third period touchdowns here today and beat the Green Bay Packers, 14 to 3, for second place in the National Football league's western division.

The Lions thrilled a crowd of 23,468 by coming from behind to beat the Packers for the first time in 11 meetings since 1940. Earlier this season Green Bay rolled to a 57 to 21 victory over the Detroit club.

Hutson Boosts Total

Don Hutson, increasing his scoring total to 97 points for the season, booted a Green Bay field goal from the 15 yard line in the second period to put the Packers in the lead until Detroit went on its scoring spree in the third period.

Bob Westfall, Detroit full back, climaxed a 75 yard Lion parade by crashing over from the 1 yard line for a touchdown after he had caught two passes from Chuck Fenenbock for 39 yards in helping set up the score. Bill Callihan kicked the point to put Detroit ahead, 7 to 3.

Five minutes later the Lions went 84 yards on five successive passes thrown by Fenenbock. Andy Farkas caught the touchdown pitch on a play covering 25 yards. Callihan again kicked the point. Lineup:

De Paul invaded St. George and handed the Evanston school a double setback, the juniors triumphing, 40 to 32, and the seniors, 41 to 36.

In other games, Joliet Catholic divided with St. Ignatius at home, the juniors winning, 34 to 27, and the seniors losing, 39 to 33. Lineups:

Football's Year of Surprises Ends on One at Great Lakes

BY WILFRID SMITH

Army's defeat of Navy and consequent successful defense of its national championship was so completely anticipated that there was no particular thrill in the accomplishment. Great Lakes' defeat of Notre Dame, however, was at least a minor upset in the midwestern season already famed for the unexpected.

On this note the 1945 season concludes save for the bowl games. This season also marks the end of war time football. Great Lakes, after four years, will retire to the obscurity of a peace time program. Army's mighty men, who held the whip over collegians by virtue of experience, may continue for another year to dominate the field. Eventually, however, Army will not have a choice of national talent and will return to its former collegiate level.

Army, Navy Run One-Two

Actually, Army and Navy merely used college teams during the war as testing ground preparatory to their tussle for national supremacy. This year was an example as Army and Navy ran one and two, respectively, in the national polls and finished that way with the cadets' 32 to 13 victory Saturday in Philadelphia.

Navy's tie with Notre Dame, 6 to 6, was evidence that the midshipmen could not compete with Army. Incidentally, th!s game was the peak of Irish performance for Notre Dame never rallied completely after the 48 to 0 debacle at Army.

Notre Dame's players lacked the spark required to match the Bluejackets Saturday and eventually absorbed a 39 to 7 trouncing, a defeat topped only by Army. If there is an explanation, it is the arduous campaign. No explanation is required, however, for Notre Dame, at any stage of the season, quite likely would have been beaten by the inspired Bluejackets.

Brown Develops Great Team

Lt. Paul Brown, former Ohio State coach who next year will Coach the Cleveland team in the All-America conference, developed a team which long will be remembered. He had few recognized stars. Yet Great Lakes, after an indifferent start, won six consecutive games.

Because Coach Brown is a top flight member of his profession, it was unfortunate that publicity emanating from Great Lakes prior to the Notre Dame game reverted to the standards of a score of years ago when misleading statements were common practice. Great Lakes, according to official releases, would start an entire second team back field and a reserve right end because of injuries and illness. Of course, this was untrue and the varsity played more than 50 minutes to win the game.

We doubt that this publicity affected Notre Dame's staff, for the coaches must have remembered how a few years ago Brown, then at Ohio State, reported that Paul Sarringhaus would not be able to play against Northwestern. Sarringhaus started that game and contributed to the Wildcats' defeat. But the Irish may have read the stories of Great Lakes' injuries. If they believed them, they now know better.

The Great Lakes players earned a magnificent victory over Notre Dame. It was unfortunate that, thru no fault of their own, they contributed to deception which was not required to achieve victory.

BEN HOGAN'S 270 WINS ORLANDO GOLF TOURNEY

Orlando, Fla., Dec. 2 (AP)—Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., scored a four under par 67 to win the $10,000 Orlando Open golf tournament today. His 72 hole total was 270.

Six strokes behind in a tie at 276 were Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Sanford, Me., and Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill.

Hogan, who last week annexed the $10,000 Montgomery Invitational tournament, took $2,000 in war bonds as a result of today's triumph.

Bob Hamilton of Chicago provided perhaps the most spectacular show when he racked up a 64, seven under par, for an eighth place 280.

Hakoahs and Vikings Win in State Cup Play

BY OFFSIDE

The Vikings defeated the Rangers, 3 to 2, in an Illinois state first round cup match yesterday afternoon in the Winnemac park stadium. The Hakoah-Centers came from behind to beat the Slovaks, 5 to 4, in Sparta stadium in a second cup match.

Jimmy McDermott and George Nemchik booted the first two Viking goals before Otto Lenker scored for the Rangers. Harry Phillips made the Vikings final score before Hilda Gunnard made the Rangers' last tally with three minutes of play remaining.

Manfred Lehman's first goal for the Hakoah-Centers was quickly nullified when Pete Patevich made two in succession to put the Slovaks ahead. After Steve Daniels added another one, the Hakoahs retaliated with four in a row by Manfred Lehman, Dr. Julius Brant and Maxi Pearlman, the latter scoring twice for a 5 to 3 lead, at the half. Daniel's second goal was the only one in the last period.

The John Rago Sons—Italians match, which resulted in a 2 to 2 tie, will be replayed next Sunday. The draw for second round matches will be held at a special meeting of the Illinois commission tomorrow night at 139 N. Clark st.

around end for 25 yards. Ken Kavanaugh took Luckman's pass and was forced out on the 6. Gary Famiglietti failed and McAfee drove to the 1, where he went out of bounds. McAfee went over on the next play in 10:06 and Gudauskas kicked goal.

On the first play after the kickoff, Ernie Bonelli fumbled and Charley Drulis recovered for the Bears on the Cardinal 38. Perkins went wide to his left, then cut back toward center, threading his way past three or four defenders with a change of pace stride. He ended his spectacular journey by running under the goal posts. Gudauskas again added the point for a 21 to 7 edge. Just before the half, Luckman's pass was intercepted by Frank Ivy on the Bears' 11, but Christman had only one chance to pass, the ball falling incomplete.

Kavanaugh Scores on Pass

It was 28 to 7 early in the third quarter when the Bears went 74 yards after the kickoff. Perkins dashed for 17 yards to midfield. Kavanaugh took a Luckman pitch for 9 and Wilson caught another for 8. The Bears were back at midfield after Perkins lost 7 and Ivy smeared Luckman for 6. Then Sid hurled a pass to Kavanaugh, who caught it on the 22 and sprinted the remaining distance. Gudauskas made it 28 to 7.

The Cards took the kickoff and punched and passed to the Bears' 3 for a first down, but wound up on the 9, where a fourth down pass was incomplete. It was second down for the Cards on the Bears' 38 when the period ended.

Fumble Leads to Touchdown

The Cards promptly went down for their second score. Al Drulis smashed for 4 and Rucinski took Christman's 10 yard pass. After Seno lost 2 and Christman 9, the Cards' quarter back passed to Rucinski for 15 yards. Billy Dewell took a pass for 9. Christman failed on a pass, then Cantor went wide 10 yards for the touchdown. Kuharich kicked goal.

When Margarita's fumble was recovered by Walt Rankin on the Bears' 29 the Cards had another chance, on which they cashed. Christman hurled to Seno for 7 and to Rucinski for 12 to the 10. Then he passed to Dewell who squirmed away from two Bears for the score. Lee Artoe blocked Kuharich's kick for the point and the Bears led 28 to 20.

With a minute remaining, Seno brought back Luckman's punt to the Cardinal 49. On fourth down Christman passed 14 yards to Dewell on the Bears' 37. Then Paul hurled to Dewell who speared the ball on the 10 as he fell out of bounds. Drulis took Christman's pitch on the 4 as the game ended. Statistics:

AUTO ACCIDENT FORM FILLING A MAJOR TASK

New Law Requires Many Details

Filling out a form under Illinois' new auto responsibility law which goes into effect Jan. 1 will be a major chore. Persons involved in reportable accidents must go into detail as to their physical condition, the weather, road conditions, and other information.

The law was passed to make drivers financially responsible for damages resulting from accidents and to promote safer driving. The driver of a vehicle involved in an accident in which damage to the property of any person, including himself, in excess of $50 is sustained must make a written report within 10 days. If death or injury takes place the report must be made within 24 hours.

Insurance Certificate Required

They must be made to the Illinois division of highways, accident report office, Springfield, Ill. Forms may be obtained at city and state police offices, sheriffs' offices, from notary publics, garages, filling stations, and elsewhere. A certificate of insurance from the insurance company must be attached.

If the driver has no public liability or property damage insurance he must post security satisfactory to the secretary of state. This security shall not exceed that to cover $5,000, exclusive of interest and costs, for death of or bodily injury to one person and $10,000 where more than one person is involved in death or injury accidents. Security for property damage is limited to $1,000.

The driver involved in a reportable accident must tell whether the accident occurred in daylight, dusk, or dark and whether the weather was clear or there was rain, snow, or fog. He must provide not only information about himself, but information as to the names, addresses, and license numbers of other drivers involved in the accident.

Injuries Must Be Listed

The driver must give the approximate cost of repairs as a result of the accident. He must list names and addresses and describe the injuries of all persons in the accident.

Seventy-one general subjects are listed on driving conditions, but only those applicable to a particular accident are to be checked. Information must not only be provided with respect to the driver making the report but also about the other drivers involved. Among the subjects about which information is sought are reckless driving, speeding, did not have right of way, passing on curve or hill, cutting in, improper parking, vehicle condition, road condition, obstruction to view and others.

If the driver is physically incapable of making the report any occupant of the vehicle is required to do so. The public is advised that "the Illinois law provides protection against the use of all reports as evidence in any trial."

Failure to comply with any of the provisions of the act may result in suspension of driving licenses and privileges.

End 3 Strikes Today; Dozen Plants Closed

Three strikes in Chicago will end this morning when workers return to plants of the Diamond T Motor Car company, the Foote Brothers Gear and Machine corporation, and Montgomery Ward & Co.

Return of workers to the motor plant terminates a strike which began Oct. 2 and involved 950 employes affiliated with the independent Automotive Workers' Industrial union who demanded discharge of employes not in good standing with the union.

End Strike at Gear Plant

Approximately 450 workers affiliated with local 1114 of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers union [CIO] ended their strike started Nov. 19 when the Foote company agreed to an immediate 5 cents an hour increase as a "down payment" on the union's demand for a $2 day increase.

A disputed number of employes of Montgomery Ward & Co. climaxed their week long strike demonstration Saturday night and will comply with union official's orders by reporting for work today.

Strikes by other members of the machine workers' union have tied up production for more than 10 days at the Illinois Gear and Machine company, 2108 N. Natchez av.; the Merkel-Korff Gear company, 213 N. Morgan st.; the D. O. Jones Automotive company, 1140 Monroe st., and the Gear Specialties company, 2635 Medill av.

Halt Production of Motors

Strikes in 12 other Chicago concerns have paralyzed production and several hundred Chicago residents have been forced into idleness by a shutdown by the United Automobile Workers' union [CIO] of the General Motors' Electro-Motive plant in McCook. The latter strike, part of the union's nation-wide move against the world's largest automobile industry, has halted production of diesel motors for locomotives.

Union officials representing 4,000 Greyhound bus employes on strike in 27 states for the last month announced a system-wide conference of local presidents involved in the dispute would be held here today following a meeting of eastern local heads yesterday.

At another conference this morning representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen will meet with the Carriers' Conference committee, representing the nation's railroads, for a discussion of wage increases and new rules improving working conditions.

SETTLE ARMOR RATE CASE

Atty. Gen. Clark has announced settlement of litigation between the government and about 450 railroads over rates for armor plate shipments. He estimated the government will recover about 4 million dollars.

GLEANER HARVESTER

I should like information regarding Gleaner Harvester corporation stock on the New York Curb exchange.—A. D.

The company at its Independence, Mo., plant manufactures machines which cut and thrash grain in one operation, and accessories. The combines have six, nine, and 12 foot cuts. The present corporation was formed in 1932 to acquire thru receivership sale the assets of a company incorporated in 1926.

In recent years production of regular lines was supplemented by war orders. In the fiscal year ended last Sept. 30 net income was equal to $1.51 a share on the 300,000 shares, sole capitalization, compared with $1.54 in 1944, $1.39 in 1943, $1.14 in 1942, $1.19 in 1941. In earlier years since 1935 the maximum earnings were $3.08 a share in 1938 and the minimum 22 cents in 1940.

Dividends declared in the current calendar year have totaled $1.20 a share, compared with $1.05 in 1944, $1 in 1943, and varying rates in earlier years. Current assets as of last Sept. 30 totaled $3,065,000 and current liabilities $562,000.

Pullman Claims Right to Select Buyer of Cars

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 2 (AP)—Pullman, Inc., has filed an 18 page brief with a special United States District court giving reasons why it thinks its sleeping car business should be sold to a group of 36 railroads instead of any of the three other bidders. Pullman said that it had the right to sell to whom it pleases so long as it dissolves its monopoly as the court directed. It added the railroads have the responsibility of providing sleeping car facilities and are the logical purchasers of the equipment.

New Zealand Puts Curb on Canada Trade

BY QUENTIN POPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 3 [Monday]—New Zealand is following Britain in erecting barriers against Canadian trade until it is apparent what Washington and Ottawa will do to smooth the postwar road of the United Kingdom, foreign traders said today.

Importers having Canadian connections said the New Zealanders are obviously following the plan of importing only essentials from Canadian suppliers. They said drugs and chemicals, wheat, paper, and sheet metal are arriving in quantity, but other imports are limited to those of which New Zealand lacks a sufficiency or partly finished materials essential for keeping local manufacturing plants operating. All finished goods and luxury and semi-luxury lines are out, importers said.

Canadian Autos Excluded

Notable among the things for which the government has granted no foreign exchange to importers is Canadian automobiles, tho cars from Britain already have arrived and are selling at prices about double pre-war levels.

Even in essentials, the government has been trimming imports permitted from Canadian sources. Newsprint, of which New Zealand produces none, arrived here before the war at the rate of 45,000 tons yearly. Next year's shipments will be held to 29,000 tons. Significant of the new trend is a recent request for bids for cardboard and paper pulp for packaging for export New Zealand foodstuffs, and acceptance of a Swedish offer, tho the cost is higher than the Canadian figure. Swedish materials can be purchased by the use of sterling.

Decisions Made at High Level

A customs department official said the expenditures for Canadian goods are not being decided by that office, tho it supposedly administers the government's foreign trade budget on the lines laid down in the annual schedule of permitted imports.

Decisions relating to Canadian commodities are made at a higher level, and they lack any information, officials said. However, one top official admitted that applications for import permits for Canadian goods are piling high on Finance Minister Walter Nash's desk, without action.

New Zealanders laid this policy to the decision to spend no dollars on Canadian goods unless the British also spend them. This new policy, which virtually means thrusting Canada outside the empire, was designed to protect the dollar pool and put pressure on Ottawa to make it realize its empire trade may dwindle unless it comes thru with more help for London.

UTILITIES GAIN UNDER IT, SAYS REPORT OF FPC

Cites Rise in Power Sales in War

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2 [Special]—The electric utility industry from 1937 thru 1944 steadily advanced toward a degree of financial soundness "unprecedented in its history," the federal power commission said today. The report contained a statement of the industry's development since adoption of the federal power act [1937], which affected the industry's accounting practices.

FPC attributed financial improvement in large part "to the strengthening of regulatory controls, particularly the enforcement of the new uniform systems of accounts during the period."

Sales Rise 82 Per Cent

It said the industry distributed 70 per cent more energy for each dollar of investment in 1944 than it did in 1937. Kilowatt hours sales increased 82 per cent, generating capacity 24 per cent, the number of customers 17 per cent, and electric revenues 44 per cent. At the same time plant investment increased only 7 per cent.

The report listed these other developments:

Depreciation reserves increased 90 per cent, or 1.3 billion dollars.

Despite added operating expenses and taxes, net earnings for investors were maintained "at a remarkably constant level."

Indebtedness Decreases

Outstanding indebtedness decreased and the ratio of long term debt to gross investment in utility plant fell from 50 to 43 per cent. The ratio of long term debt to net plant decreased from 55 per cent to 54.

Interest charges, which were covered 2.97 times in 1937, were covered 3.64 times in 1944.

More than 3 billion dollars representing accruals for depreciation and amortization, together with the balance of earnings after payment of dividends, were invested in property additions and replacements or utilized to retire outstanding securities.

STRIKE IS MAIN CONCERN THRU STEEL INDUSTRY

Cleveland, O., Dec. 2 (AP)—The most disturbing consideration in the steel industry is "the prospect of a general shutdown, perhaps by the end of the year," because of the CIO United Steel Workers' vote, authorizing a strike, the magazine Steel said today.

"Inability of producers to obtain price relief appears at present to have removed the major prop from the possibility of an early solution of the present wage dispute," it said.

Busy Without Auto Volume

Referring to the General Motors corporation strike and a "slowing in production of parts and accessories for other automobile builders," Steel commented:

"Should this trend become far more widespread soon, as seems likely, there is such diversified demand for sheets, bars, wire and other leading products that producers are little concerned at present over possibility of not being able to maintain production in face of increasing cuts in automotive tonnage.

"The pig iron supply continues tight and inability to increase inventory for winter causes some apprehension among builders.

Chicago, National Rates Up

"Scrap is scarce and some steel makers are paying highest prices, with considerable springboard and frate equalization, in the effort to get supplies on hand for expected winter conditions."

Steel production continued to increase, but at a slower rate, rising 1 point during the week to 83½ per cent of capacity. The Chicago rate advanced 2½ points to 93½, Detroit, 4 to 91, and Cincinnati 2 to 67. Cleveland lost 2 points to 85 and New England 1 to 82.

FARNSWORTH'S 6 MONTH PROFIT DIPS TO $500,845

Farnsworth Television and Radio corporation net earnings in the six months ended Oct. 31, first half of its fiscal year, decreased to $500,845 from $592,921 a year earlier, E. A. Nicholas, president, said yesterday. He explained that the drop reflected war contract terminations.

Altho reconversion of the company's facilities was started without delay production was slowed by inability to obtain materials and parts from certain suppliers whose activities were held up awaiting establishment of OPA price formulas and as a result of strikes. Initial production, however, will be on the market before the end of the year.

PROSPECTS BRIGHTEN FOR CONVENTION USE OF NAVY PIER IN 1946

Prospects that the navy may vacate Navy pier in time for its use by several large trade shows, already tentatively arranged for next year, grew brighter yesterday.

The Chicago convention bureau said that Rear Adm. Good, chief of the office of naval operations at Washington, D. C., had told Illinois senators and congressmen that his office would give immediate consideration to moving its radio school from the pier.

Unless the pier, with its spacious display halls, is made available, at least four large conventions and shows will have to abandon plans to meet in Chicago next year, the convention bureau asserted when it first communicated with the navy a month ago.

HUNT FOR CASH BELIEVED IN FIRE WINDS UP IN ROW

A showup of 38 patrolmen, two sergeants and two lieutenants at the Shakespeare av. police station yesterday was concluded in a heated, secret argument between Supervising Police Capt. Joseph Goldberg and Jack Rubens, chief investigator for the public administrator, over the reported disappearance of several thousand dollars in a fire Oct. 13 in the apartment of Mrs. Huldah Sittig, 81, of 2247 Armitage av. Mrs. Sittig was burned to death.

Edward E'liston and his son, Ronald, 12, who live in the apartment directly below that occupied by Mrs. Sittig, said bundles of bills in large denominations fell from a smouldering mattress which burst when it was thrown out of an upstairs window during the fire.

Fail to Identify Police

They said they gave some of the packages to policemen, but they were unable to identify any of the patrolmen or officers in the showup. Elliston recognized only two policemen, neither of whom was at the scene of the fire until the next day.

Capt. Goldberg said the negative result of the showup vindicated the policemen. Every man from the Shakespeare district who was at the fire, and some from an adjoining district, appeared, he said.

"I am going to take this matter into Commissioner Allman's office tomorrow," he said. "I want to clean this matter up as soon as possible. The police department wants a clean bill of health, or if there is any man guilty, we want to find that out immediately."

Showup "Fairly Conducted"

After the policemen left the room in which they were viewed by the Ellistons, Capt. Goldberg remained behind the closed door with Rubens, and their loud voices were heard in the hallway. Goldberg appeared to scold Rubens for permitting the report of the missing money to appear in newspapers before the police could investigate it.

When Rubens came out of the room he admitted the showup had been "fairly conducted," but reiterated his claim the police department bears the responsibility of recovering the money.

Capt. Goldberg said it is questionable whether any money is missing. The public administrator has found $20,285 divided among three bank accounts and an additional $2,100 in Mrs. Sittig's safe, he said. A Probate court hearing in the case has been continued to Jan. 8.
